TIMONIUM, MD. — Dawn Downey, 17-year-old daughter of Frank and Carolyn Downey was awarded the honor to represent Maryland Farm Bureau as their Queen for 1992. The contest took place at the Cow Palace of the Maryland State Fair Sunday night. Dawn, who was Washington County Farm Bureau Queen, was chosen from participants representing 23 Maryland counties. She accepted her crown from 1991 queen, Kelly Holland of Worcester County.

Miss Downey lives with her parents and three brothers, Kirk, Ryan and Wade on a 700-acre dairy, beef and grain farm in southern Washington County. She has been active in 4-H for the past eight years, showing her Jersey and Holstein dairy animals, Suffolk sheep and German Shepherd dog. A champion public speaker, she participated as a Maryland delegate to the 1991 National 4-H conference, testified at Maryland Public Hearings to defend 4-H against proposed budget cuts, is a 4-H Ambassador and participant in Maryland 4-H Teen Focus.

Dawn has also gained experience for her role as queen from prior reigns as Maryland State Jersey Queen and Washington County Dairy Princess.

Master Farmer Visits Russia To Compare Notes

FRYSTOWN (Berks Co.) — For George Moyer, returning from a 14-day trip to Russia was like coming home to heaven. Because the corn and alfalfa on Moyer's Dairy of Distinction farm looks great, the contrast was remarkable, compared to the dry pastures and thistle patches they saw on the trip.

"We take so much for granted," said the 1989 Master Farmer. "They have better soil than we do, but they are 50 years behind in methods and technology."

Moyer was part of a "people-to-people" group organized as a sustainable agriculture delegation. They left on July 24 and returned August 9.

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — The swine industry is looking for the "best carcass," which was evident in the hog named supreme market champion on Wednesday at the Allentown Fair.

Benjamin Lazarus, 17, son of Grant and Linda Lazarus, Germansville, picked up supreme championship honors with his medium weight (225-pound) Landrace/Duroc/Chester White barrow from his family's Busy Acres herd.

This is Ben's first grand champion at Allentown, and he has been showing for about nine years.

Judge Kenneth Fetterolf, a Hampshire and Duroc breeder from Centre Hall and a leader of the Centre Hall 4-H Ag Club, said the hog, as a carcass, will show its squareness "down the top and at

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, September 2, 1992

Trucklot buying interest was irregular with most buyers trying to cover anticipated needs for first of the month, the long holiday weekend, and a four day work schedule, but also going into next week very cautious. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were adequate for immediate needs. Sellers asked higher prices for any additional product that was available. Line run breasts were in close balance and trading was reported at higher prices; but buyers were cautious and some product offered this morning was not yet cleared. Leg quarters were in good shape. Wings were readily available.

OPINION

A Winning Attitude

In a letter to the editor of our town newspaper, Charles Longenecker from New Holland noted that Alabama State Coach "Bear" Bryant had written the following:

"If anything goes bad, I did it."

"If anything goes semi-good, we did it."

"If anything goes real good, then you did it."

That's all it takes to get people to win football games for you.

Longenecker's point was aimed at the President and Congress as they blame each other for the woes of the country. We asked permission to use Longenecker's point in another situation.

Many dairy persons from various parts of the state and nation blame each other for the woes of the industry. If Bryant could get his university teams to win games with this philosophy, why couldn't the same attitude be used to bring a more unified effort among farmers?

Farm Forum

Editor:

I read, with interest, your editorial on August 8, 1992. I applaud your support for the Veterinary College at the University of Pennsylvania. The contribution of this vet school to the State has been well documented. I would point out that the graduates of the vet school have made a large impact on a national basis. Their approach to large animal medicine has been in the forefront of the changes that are occurring in veterinary colleges across the country. They are providing leadership in the new concepts of production medicine. The new veterinarian is being trained in a broader array of factors that affect the animal on the farm. Animal health is still the major emphasis. They also provide training in nutrition, record analysis and total analysis and total farm analysis and management. This approach is giving the animal industry in Pennsylvania the competitive edge over the rest of the country.

I am concerned that you suggest that the College not pursue nutrition research and consulting. First the nutrition research is being carried out on farms in the area. I think that if you ask the producers where this research is being conducted you will find nothing but a positive response about the interaction. Second, this research is being conducted by some of the top scientists in the country. Third, the young veterinary students are being exposed to the cutting edge in nutrition concepts and are being trained in dairy management. It is suggested that these activities rather than competing with industry will help keep the producer competitive and will help keep the producer in business. I would suggest that the producer will benefit from research being conducted in two locations, both at Penn State and at U Penn. I would also point out that this research is mostly funded in BOTH locations by industry. The animal industry in Pennsylvania can consider themselves lucky that they have such a forward looking group at New Bolton Center. The loss of this College would be a travesty to your industry.

To Plan Corn Harvest

Silo filling time will be delayed on many farms this year because of the cooler summer we have had.

We simply did not receive the required heat units and growing degree days necessary to mature corn at the normal rate. So before jumping into silo filling, be sure to check the moisture content of several stalks in the field and check the maturity of the ears in both the fields to be ensiled and in the fields to be picked or shelled.

Next you need to ask yourself, will the grain corn have enough time to mature before frost? If not, you might have to salvage some of the later maturing fields as silage.

If that is the case, you may want to save some of your silage fields for picking or shelling. Now is the time to assess the maturity level of your corn fields and plan your harvest strategy.

To Maintain Body Condition In Cows

One of the most stressful times in a cows life is the time of calving and the weeks that follow. To minimize stress it is important that cows have adequate body reserves at calving time.

To accomplish this, aim for a body condition score of 3.5 to 3.75 in late lactation when the cow is dried off. Maintain this score until calving time and avoid losses of flesh or weight.

The development of the unborn calf in the last two months of pregnancy requires that the cow gain about one to two pounds per day during the dry period. If she draws upon her body reserves to develop the fetus, the cow will enter into calving with depleted reserves.

Thus, it is important for the cow to be fed a little extra grain two to three weeks before calving. It is important to feed dry cows properly so they will get off to a good start in their lactation.

This requires two dry cow groups. The second group is made up of the cows two to three weeks from calving. During this time, while consuming their dry cow ration, they should also be introduced to small quantities of the lactating ration to help smooth the transition to the lactating ration after calving.

It may also be beneficial to offer the freshening cow a stress pack, especially if she goes off feed at calving time. This will help ensure an adequate intake of essential vitamins, minerals and other nutrients at this very crucial time and help to get her back on feed rapidly.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHEN GOD SAYS "GO"

September 6, 1992

Background Scripture:
Genesis 11:27 through 12:9.
Devotional Reading:
Genesis 13:14-18.

Although Abram's story is set in a time some thousands of years ago, it has a lot of relevance for the world we live in today, for ours is a time of rapid and radical change. People are on the move today and it would seem that the one thing of whcih we can be certain is uncertainity.

These are times that severely challenge our faith. For faith is easier to come by when things are relatively stable. But in a world marked by instability, it is harder to trust.

The word "faith" can denote what we believe. When we speak of the Lutheran faith or the Methodist faith, we are speaking about the doctrinal ideas held by Lutherans and Methodists. Let us make no mistake about Abram's faith. The writer of Genesis is not talking about ideas, creeds or doctrines. Actually, we know practically nothing of the content of Abram's beliefs. What the writer of Genesis is depicting is Abram's trust in God. When God said to Abram, "Go from your country and your kindred and your father's house to the land that I will show you"(12:1), Abraham trusted God and obeyed him. That was Abram's faith.

BUNGEE-JUMPING

Recently I saw some people doing bungee-jumping. I'm sure you know what it is: people are

Now, I want you to know that I believe what that article said—rightly done, bungee-jumping is probably pretty safe—but don't expect me to try it! In my mind, I believe it could be safe, but that belief does not extend down into my legs. Jumping off a high perch requires more than believing an idea. I must trust that idea to the point that I can commit myself to it. My beliefs have to be stronger than my fears. And I confess I am not going to entrust my life to a long, rubber cord, no matter how strong it is and no matter how many statistics you show me.

That's the challenge that came to Abram. God said "Go," and the question was not whether he believed in God, but whether he trusted him enough to journey into the unknown. Perhaps his father, Terah, was the original recipient of the call to go to the promised land. Terah and his family did leave Ur of the Chaldeans for the land of Canaan. But when they had covered a little more than half the way, they stopped and settled in Haran.

INTERRUPTED JOURNEY

I can relate to that, for sometimes my life has been like the interrupted journey from Ur to Canaan. Sometimes God has called me and I have trusted him enough to start off on my venture. But later, I realize that somewhere along the way I have settled down considerably short of the goal. Often, when I have stopped and settled down along the way, I have not realized that I was stopping and settling for something less than that for which I began the venture.

I'm sure that, along the way, there were times when Abram was tempted to do just that. What makes him a person of faith, then, its that he met two great challenges: to trust God enough to both begin and continue the journey to the end. It is not enough to go when God sends us; we have to keep going until we get to the end of the line.

One of the jumpers said, "Once you leap, there's nothing but that long thin line to depend on"! Religious faith, then, is a little like spiritual bungee-jumping. Essentially, when god says "Go!" it is the leap of faith, not calculation, that we must make.

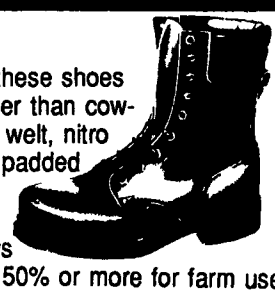
HORSEHIDE
GENUINE HORSEHIDE
Barnyard Acid Resistant American Made



Made of tough, long wearing horsehide, these shoes stand manure, silage, oil and grease better than cowhide. Shoes feature a genuine Goodyear welt, nitro cork sole that will not track, steel shank, padded collar, cushion insole and arch support. Ideal for barn use. Sizes 7-13 including ½ sizes. 1st quality. Our experience shows that horsehide outlasts good cowhide by 50% or more for farm use.

FARM MANAGEMENT

PRICING CORN SILAGE IN THE FIELD

Roland Freund
Multicounty Farm
Management Agent

Each year at this time we have many farmers with dairy or beef cattle to feed who are short of forage. At the same time, their neighboring crop farmers have corn fields which they are willing to sell as silage. If they can agree upon a price that is fair, then trading corn silage can be a good deal for both parties.

This is especially true in a year when early frost could threaten grain yields in corn fields. To analyze such a situation it is necessary to look at the transaction from the viewpoints of both the corn grower and the cattleman.

Corn Grower's Perspective

Before corn growers can decide what they must get if they sell corn as silage, they need to work out what the field would give them if they sell it as grain. They must know grain yield potential and the price they can expect at harvest time.

Grain yield can be determined by sampling and yield checking the field. Price can be established by what the mill is offering for contract deliveries at normal harvest time.

These two facts enable corn growers to determine the gross income potential for corn as grain.

But this is not what the grain is worth when it's standing in the field. Harvest cost, drying, and hauling must all be deducted first to give the net income from grain. This is the minimum which corn growers could accept. If corn growers can get more than grain income by selling it in another form, that alternative may be a better deal for them.

Cattleman's Perspective

Buyers of a corn field need to know how much feed and the value of the feed they are getting. Corn silage yield in an even stand can be measured by sampling techniques. With uneven fields or in droughty conditions, this is a guessing game.

Because there is about twice as much water as there is dry matter in silage, it's more important to know the dry matter% (D.M.%) and pay for dry matter tons than to try to estimate moisture levels and count wagon loads.

The simplest and most accurate system to determine yield is to start with an empty silo, measure the level of silage in the filled structure, and use silo tables to arrive at the dry matter tons in the silo. Take care to check if the tables are for once-only filling, for settled height, or for settled and refilled capacity.

When cattlemen are feeding normal well-eared 35% D.M. corn silage (65% moisture), in each ton the cattle are eating about 4 hundredweight of ear corn and 4 hundredweight of fibre equivalent to a fair quality grass hay. This means that in one D.M. ton of corn silage there is approximately 0.57 tons of ear corn and 0.57 tons of hay.

So, the price of ear corn and the price of grass hay can be used to calculate corn silage value.

The cattleman is going to have expenses handling this silage which must be deducted: harvesting, hauling, and ensiling. In addition, there are ensiling losses and quality adjustments which need to be considered. The resulting value is the maximum price that the cattleman should pay.

Buyer Beware!

Recognize that there is usually a big difference between minimum and maximum price in such a deal. Careful calculations and honest negotiations should ensure that a price is struck which is advantageous to both parties.

To assist in these computations, Penn State Extension has a computer template in each extension office. Do not hesitate to contact your county extension office and request that your figures be run through the "Pricing Corn Silage" program.

Providing that the information supplied is reasonably accurate, the printout will give both parties the information which they need to negotiate a corn silage deal.

Example

Area of field- 45 acres
Shelled Corn yield- 117 bu.
Silage fills 24x80 silo, 294 D.M.T.
Shelled corn harvest price- $2.20/bu.
Ear corn harvest price- $70/T.
Fair grass hay- $60/T.

Corngrower's Calculations

Grain gross sales- 117x2.20=$257

Harvesting cost-	$23
Grain haul-	$10
Drying charge-	$29
Total deductions-	$62
Potential income from grain	$195
Stover value-	$33
Corngrower's value per acre-	$228

Cattleman's Calculations

Yield = 294
45 = 6.5 D.M.T./Ac.
0.57 Tons Earcorn @ $75 = $42.75
0.57 Tons Grasshay @ $60 = $34.20

Feedvalue/Acre = $6.5x77 = $500

Harvest cost-	$50
Hauling cost-	$25
Ensiling cost-	$10
Storage loss (10%)	$50
Total costs, losses	$135

Cattleman's maximum value $365 per acre
At various moisture levels this is equivalent to a price per wet ton:
60%- $22.50
65%- $20.00
70%- $16.85
and 75%- $14.00

NAJ Asks For Hearing

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — National All-Jersey Inc. (NAJ), a national dairy farmer organization, has requested USDA to hold a public hearing to consider a multiple component pricing proposal for the Chicago Regional, Iowa, and Upper Midwest federal order.

The request for the hearing is supported by Alto Dairy Cooperative, First District Association, Lakeshore Federation, Land O'Lakes, Swiss Valley Farms, Tri-State Cooperative, and Wisconsin Dairies. These organizations represent a substantial proportion of producers in the three federal orders.

The proposal for multiple component pricing (MCP) in these orders prices producer milk on the basis of butterfat, protein, and other solids content. Under the plan, handlers purchasing milk for Class I use will continue to pay for milk on a fat and skim basis. Milk used for Class II and Class III purposes is priced on a component basis.

There are five key features to the MCP plan being proposed.

First, the basic formula price (currently the M-W) will not change.

Second, as noted above, three components are priced: butterfat, protein, and solids-not-fat other than protein (other solids).

Third, the butterfat and protein prices are determined from product prices for butter and cheese, respectively.

The other solids price is residual.

Fourth, component prices are announced on a per pound basis, rather than as differentials. And, fifth, milk used in Class I will continue to be priced on a fat and skim basis.

In comparison to multiple component pricing plans currently in use, this plan incorporates several innovations in pricing. It prices not just two, but three milk components of value.

The protein price is derived from the cheese market and it is not a residual. The protein price is not a function of the average protein content of milk in the market.

Tractor Collectors Gear Up For International Cockshutt Show

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A Cockshutt is a better investment than a CD.

That's the philosophy of Cockshutt tractor enthusiast Floyd Miller, who's been collecting and restoring antique tractors for several years.

Miller, York, is a director of the International Cockshutt/Co-op Tractor Collectors Association. In that capacity, he will chair the group's annual meeting and Cockshutt tractor show to be held September 11-13 in Westminster, Md.

That show is a featured part of the 30th annual Steam and Gas Roundup of the Mason-Dixon Historical Society and will take place on the grounds of the Carroll County Farm Museum at Westminster.

The Cockshutt association membership of 400 spans the U.S. and Canada, alternating meetings between the two countries. Begun about four years ago, the group's Westminster gathering is the first in the mid-Atlantic area. Miller expects it will be several years before another meeting is scheduled on the eastern seaboard.

An estimated 100 vintage Cockshutt and co-op tractors are expected for the national show, including several from Canadian participants. Miller hopes to have on display by its Ohio owner the only Model 580 Cockshutt known to still exist, a 1960's machine large for its time and powered by a 354 Perkins Diesel engine. A descendant of the founding Cockshutt family, William Cockshutt has been invited to attend as a special guest.

Other features of the vintage machinery celebration include a "parts corral," toy collectors from as far away as Wisconsin, and the issuance of a limited edition Cockshutt 540 toy tractor of 1/16 scale.

According to Miller, the English-owned Cockshutt firm began in 1877 in Canada as the Brantford Plow Works, later known as the Cockshutt Plow Company. Cockshutt plows, he said played a major role in opening the Canadian west.

Before World War II, Cockshutt sold Oliver tractors, painted with the Cockshutt colors and name. Then, in 1946, they began manufacturing the Cockshutt Model 30, a two-to-three bottom plow tractor and the first on the market with a live PTO and hydraulic system. They also bought out the Ohio Cultivator Company, Bellevue, Ohio, where the Black Hawk line of corn planters, grain drills, and other equipment was produced. White-Oliver Corporation bought out Cockshutt Farm Equipment Limited in 1962.

The organization also includes collectors of the Co-op model tractor manufactured in Battle Creek, Mich. and Shelbyville, Ind. betwen 1935 and 1951.

"We hope to have several of these co-ops as well at the Maryland show," said Miller, who has restored both Cockshutt and co-op models to mint condition.

Miller's father, a thresherman-father who did local custom work in the Hellam area of eastern York county, once owned two Cockshutt Model 40s and a Model 30. When they sold at public sale, Miller had not yet caught the "restoring bug" and did not keep any of the tractors of his boyhood. But his interest was rekindled after becoming a gas engine hobbyist in the early 1960s.

Bill Cockshutt, a descendant of the owners of the Cockshutt equipment firm, has been invited to attend the National Cockshutt Show in Westminster.

Cockshutts, according to Miller, were not as well known in Pennsylvania as in the midwest and Canada, and those sold were mostly in the Lebanon Valley, Lancaster, York, and Somerset county areas. Many of the larger ones, he said, went for tractor-pulling use because of the "tough rear end design."

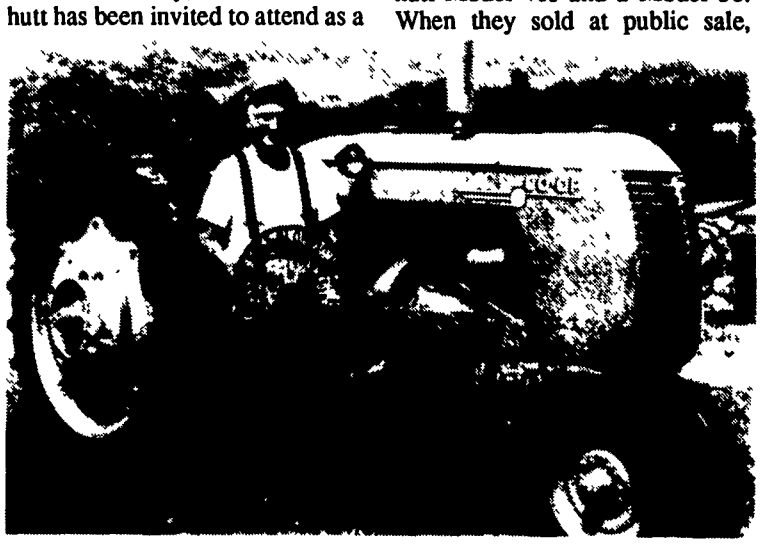
"Ten or twenty years ago, I thought the price had topped out," said Miller. "Now they're a better investment than a bank. Most of this stuff has been pretty well hunted out, but sometimes you find them at estate sales. People don't always know what they have."

It was at an estate sale in 1980 that Floyd Miller purchased the gutted remnants of a Cockshutt Black Hawk and numerous boxes of parts. The acquisition included the remains of a shiny tractor that had once made national news when it was presented by state Farm Bureau organizations to President Dwight D. Eisenhower as a gift for use on his Gettysburg farm.

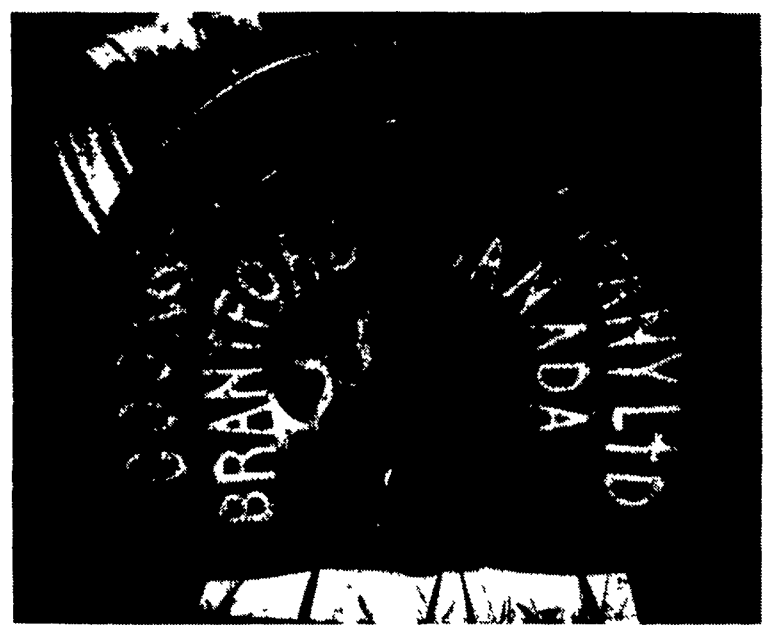
Though several more years passed until a retired Miller had time to devote to his purchase, he restored the Cockshutt in about six months time. He displays it at numerous vintage equipment shows and hauled it back to the Eisenhower farm at Gettysburg for display during a special tribute to the late president.

Between restoration sessions with a few special items he's trying to complete, Miller is pulling together last minute details for the national show at the Carroll County Farm Museum grounds outside Westminster. The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. on September 11, 12 and 13, including devotional services on Sunday morning.

Information on the national Cockshutt/co-op tractor organization and upcoming show is available by contacting Floyd Miller, R11, Box 613, York, PA 17406, (717) 755-6946.



This 1950 E-3 Co-op tractor has been returned to like-new condition by collector-restorer Floyd Miller.



An original late 1800's-era Cockshutt equipment seat was acquired by Floyd Miller from a Kansas collector. Miller speculates that the cast iron seat originated on a piece of horse-drawn equipment.

Control Weeds Through Natural Enemies

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Weeds can be controlled by their natural insect and disease enemies, said Dr. Phil Tipping, a Maryland Department of Agriculture scientist conducting research at a Maryland Agricultural Experiment Stations (MAES) facility.

Tipping will be demonstrating MAES research in biocontrol of weeds at the Western Maryland Reserach and Education Center's field day near Keedysville on September 10.

For example, musk thistle is at a manageable level because of recent bicontrol efforts. Biological control of the thistle included bringing beneficial insects and diseases that previously kept the weed in check in Europe and Asia to the United States.

"Biological control often is used because it can be very effective on a regional basis, which is demonstrated in the success of musk thistle control in this area," Tipping said. "Since musk thistle has become a target of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, its population is declining in Maryland and nearby states."

Musk thistle and other weeds are a problem for Maryland farmers because they are unpalatable to livestock and crowd out more desireable pasture growth, the researcher said.

In seeking out a weed's enemies, the trick is finding those that feed specifically on the target weed, he said.

But biocontrol doesn't completely eliminate weeds—it manages the weed population.

"The cornerstone of biocontrol is that it doesn't eradicate the target pest -- it just lowers its numbers to a manageable level," Tipping said.

One of the advantages of biological control of weeds versus spraying pesticides, he said, is biocontrol's economic benefits.

"Biocontrol is very cost-effective. Look at the introduced weed enemies as an invisible work force," he said. "And you don't have to keep paying them. You just bring them to the area and introduce them to the weed."

The payoff comes over several years because many of the weeds are perennial. Once you find a weed's enemies, you don't have to spray annually for the one weed -- the insects or disease will feed on it, easing the strain on the grower or breeder.

Tipping has worked on biological weed control for about five years. "There's not a shortage of target weeds," he said. as one weed comes under control, Tipping's research team will seek others nearby that are unpalatable to livestock.

Soon, they will tackle plumeless thistle. Tipping said they already have located one of the thistle's natural enemies, and they currently are seeking more.

The WMREC Field Day will highlight research activities at the station that benefit the state's agriculture, environment, and natural resources.

The day will feature research wagon tours, farm equipment displays, and home economics seminars. The wagon tours will begin departing at 8:30 a.m. and will continue until 11:30 a.m.

The 25-minute home economics seminars will start at 9 a.m. and on each half hour throughout the morning.

F.O.4 Milk Price $15.62

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Rex F. Lothrop recently announced a Class I milk price of $15.62 per hundredweight for September 1992.

This price is up 13 cents from August and is $1.60 above last September's Class I price.

Mr. Lothrop announced a Class III milk price of $12.64 per hundredweight for July 1992. The Class III price was up 27 cents from the previous month.

The September 1992 Class I price and the July 1992 Class III price are based on the July 1992 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $12.59 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The July 1992 butterfat price was 80.19 cents per pound, down seven-tenths of a cent from June. The July skim milk price per hundredweight was $10.19.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for July was 76.47 cents per pound on the mercantile exchange and the Central States Extra Grade nonfat dry milk price was $1.15 per pound.

175 Entries At Harford Dairy Competition

RONALD CLARK
Susquehanna Co. Correspondent

HARFORD (Susquehanna Co.) — Cloudy and threatening weather didn't stop the enthusiastic youth and their supporters from following the progress of the Youth Dairy Show recently at the Harford Fair.

Although Holsteins are the dominant breed in northeastern Pennsylvania, there was a good showing of Ayrshires and Jerseys and a smattering of Brown Swiss and Ayrshires.

Type judge Jim Curtis, professor of dairy science at Morrisville College, Morrisville, N.Y., was backed up by fitting judge Don Hibbard, Sire Power, and show judge Roger Sherwood of Wyoming County. Curtis is also a coach of the judging team at his college. Ringmaster Dave Longacre of Susquehanna County kept the classes moving in a highly successful show.

dairy show was awarded to the Jersey, Top of the Hill Admiral Tina, Wednesday afternoon. The beautifully uddered four-year-old had the style and conformation to catch the eye of Judge Larry Specht, Penn State dairy specialist, and repeat last year's performance as the supreme titlists in the dairy show.

Seeds' well-known home-bred Jersey herd has won at least 20 grand championships over the years. At the Mardis Gras celebration Tuesday evening, Seeds was honored for 30 years of livestock exhibitions at the Allentown Fair.

The Supreme champion in the small bull show was shown by Angie Brensinger for Hidden Acres. The champion came from the yearling class in the Milking Shorthorn show.

Management Information For Barn Use

New Ration Recommendations Available

A new ration recommendation program is now offered by PaDHIA to provide additional assistance to dairymen and their nutritional consultants in the feeding of dairy cows. The overall format now applies to most currently used methods of feeding and includes recommended nutrient contents for balancing concentrates fed to producers or dry cows. In addition ration evaluations are automatically included for major items in the diet.

Dairymen or their consultants may choose from five levels of forage intake and three levels of net energy lactation (NEL) in the concentrate portion of the ration. Amounts of concentrate to feed may be provided as a single grain mixture or as two feeds (primarily energy and protein sources). In addition levels of top feed may be indidicated using rates provided by the client.

Nutrient specifications are given on an air-dry or as-fed basis for crude protein, calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, salt and the chosen NEL content. Concentrate mixtures are not formulated in this initial DHI nutritional package. These may be developed by the client or nutritional consultatnts using the recommended nutrient specifications and additional ones not included, such as trace minerals and fat-soluble vitamins. The nutrient specifications also may be used to help dairyment select manufactured dairy feeds that most closely meet the needs of his animals at a given point in time.

A balancing forage should be indicated to enable adjustments in forage intake which may be needed to attain the forage intake levels indicated by the client or meet reasonable minimum or maximums. The recommended intake of the balancing forage is reported. Intake for any forage fed may be indicated by the client on a "same amount" for each animal or free-choice basis. Average intakes should be accurately determined and indicated whenever possible. However, it is possible to enter the balancing forage at unknown intake. The average amount of such forage recommended to meet needs will then be indicated. Another option will force intakes of forage at the levels indicated by the user.

A ration which includes a top-feed at appreciable levels may be more accurately balanced when the top-feed contains some amount of mineral supplementation rather than just energy and/or protein ingredients. This is particularly true on rations containing primarily forages with a low protein and mineral content, such as corn silage and average grass forages. Amounts of top-feed to use for individual cows are printed out according to the instructions given by the client.

The amounts of concentrate recommended on an individual feeding basis are those needed to meet nutritional requirements for maintenance, production, fat test, growth and gestation. Generally they need adjustment only to meet desired flesh scores or offset excessive drops in production or last test day. When a sound TMR is properly fed, animals may adjust intakes on their own to meet flesh needs. If necessary they also may be moved from one TMR to another according to flesh needs, as well as milk production. Whether feeding is on an individual or group basis, amounts of concentrate are designed to meet protein as well as energy needs whenever concentrate maximums allow. This should help production and health at both ends of the milk production scale.

Proper use of a two-feed system has been shown in some studies to increase returns over feed costs by $55 per cow yearly over feeding a single concentrate mixture. This option is available in the new DHIA ration program. For example seperate feeding levels can be provided for a 12% dairy feed and a 32% concentrate, or high-moisture grain and a high-protein concentrate.

While it is important to obtain good production peaks in early lacation cows by use of a well-balanced ration, major losses in milk production may be attributed to lack of ration balance for cows past peak of lacation. Recommendations in the new DHI nutrition package attempt to improve feeding at all stages of lacation. Improvements in health and production from routinely balancing rations for cows throughout the dry period can further add to returns upon subsequent freshening.

Sound utilization of the new DHIA ration evaluation and recommendation programs do not eliminate the need for nutritional assistance on most farms, but provides dairymen and their consultants with additional tools to use in improving feeding programs, production efficiency and returns. Contact your DHIA Supervisor, Dairy Extension Agent or the State DHIA office at Penn State (814-865-1517) for further information.

World Dairy Expo Salutes Dairy Leaders

MADISON Wis. — Every industry has certain individuals who stand out above the others. The dairy industry is no exception.

Each year, World Dairy Expo recognizes four outstanding leaders who have made exceptional contributions to the dairy world.

This year four people have been chosen for recognition.

Dairyman of the year is John D. (Jack) Hardesty, of Berryville, Va. International person of the year is Roland Singy of Posieux, Switzerland. Dairy woman of the year is Joan Brown of Hughson, Calif., and the industry person of the year is Leland Allenstein, DVM of Whitewater, Wis.

Recognition award winners are selected by an anonymous committee appointed by World Dairy Expo. Nominees are chosen based on their achievements and participation in dairy activities, dairy herd (if applicable), community activities, professional and/or farm organization memberships, and honors.

The four winners will be honored at a special banquet kicking off the 1992 World Dairy Expo. This year's show is Sept. 30 - Oct. 4 at the Dane County Expo Center, Madison, Wis.

Roland Singy, of Switzerland, is the retired head of the Animal Breeding Station in Grangeneuve and the chief executive of the Holstein Association of Switzerland.

Singy was instrumental in the acceptance of the Holstein Friesian cow in Alpine Europe.

In the 1950's, the Black and White (Fribourg) breed, a dual purpose breed related to Simmental, had severe breeding problems. The breed then made up about one percent of Switzerland's cattle population.

Singy strongly supported a new breeding philosophy that used Canadian and United States semen. This eventually resulted in more Black and White cattle, steady productivity growth and increased production.

From 1972, Singy traveled yearly to North America to select bulls for Swiss semen import. His goal was to eventually replace the Black and White cattle with Holsteins. His sampling program of Swiss-bred bulls is highly respected in Switzerland and internationally.

Singy's leadership extended to service as executive secretary of the Fribourg Holstein Association. He established the Dairy Expo in Bulle and managed it up to his retirement in 1990.

Singy served as director of the Swiss Artificial Insemination Association, the KSV (Swiss association for cattle, semen and embryo export) and the Swiss E.T. Association. Singy is also very involved in the community activities of Villars-sur-Glane where he resides with his wife Jeanne.

John (Jack) D. Hardesty was selected for his outstanding achievements in dairy production, as well as his support of the dairy industry.

Hardesty operates Harvue farms with his wife Carter, in partnership with his two sons and their families in Berryville, Va.

The Harvue farm partnership began in 1949 with Jack's father, the late John Hardesty. The operation has since grown from one cow to more than 600 Holsteins on a 1,700-acre farm operation. More than 6 million pounds of milk are produced annually at Harvue.

In 1991, Harvue received Virginia's top herd award. The herd average that year on 310 cows was 23,498 pounds of milk, with 3.7 percent, 867 pounds fat, and 3.3 percent, 767 pounds protein. Harvue's B.A.A. was 105.4.

Under Hardesty's guidance, Harvue has excelled in state shows, winning premier breeder and exhibitor 10 times since 1986. The farm has marketed cattle in the United States and 20 other countries.

Jack Hardesty has also been involved in other aspects of dairy leadership. He currently serves as vice president of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, as a board director for the Virginia Holstein Association, as well as Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Association board director.

A veterinarian from Whitewater, Wis., Leland C. Allenstein will be recognized for his outstanding contributions to the dairy industry.

Few dairymen would be unable to recognize Allenstein's friendly picture or sould advice in "Cow-side Practice," a regular column in Hoard's Dairyman magazine since 1969. He has been described by his peers as the "ultimate pro-

War On Mosquitoes

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker announced that Maryland Department of Agriculture is stepping up its mosquito war on the Lower Eastern Shore in response to heavy rains which threaten to produce a bumper crop of mosquitoes.

Governor William Donald Schaefer said, "I am pleased that the Maryland Department of Agriculture is moving quickly to head off this problem. Mosquitoes are a real pest and pose a nuisance to people, livestock, and pets."

Mosquito populations on the Eastern Shore of Maryland are likely to increase greatly. Recently, rainfall amounts on the Eastern Shore exceeded four inches and have caused flooding in salt marsh and upland mosquito breeding sites.

A concerted effort by the Maryland Department of Agriculture to control the larvae at the source is under way, utilizing all available gound equipment and aircraft. Aerial spraying has been hindered by the poor flying conditions, but will intensify as the weather improves and adult mosquitoes begin to emerge and fly in search of a blood meal.

All participating county, city, and community control programs can expect to see increased spraying to reduce mosquito annoyance. Aerial spraying to reduce large mosquito populations is likely to occur on the lower Eastern Shore in the coming weeks.

Communities and homeowners may contact Robert Berry on (410)543-6626 at the mosquito control headquarters in Salisbury, Md. for information.

Pork Producers Praise Bush Initiative

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Pork Producers Council called President Bush's initiative to expand the Export Enhancement Program (EEP) for pork "a historcially significant event for the meat industry in this country. It sets a precedent — it's the first time that this approach has ever been used to fight the unfair competition that we face around the world in the global market for meat," said Tim Rose, president of the NPPC.

Rose said during a national teleconference that President Bush's initiative "also reflects a new commitment to value-added exports in this country, something that we feel has been needed for a long time. We hope it's the beginning of the process to turn around our net importer status in this country. This EEP is just for the former Soviet Union ... but we hope to look at other markets where tools like EEPs can help us fight unfair competition."

President Bush directed the Agriculture Department to use the EEP to make available American-produced pork products to the former Soviet Union. "This initiative will enable an otherwise competitibe U.S. industry to fight unfair competition and gain an important market share in a potentially vast market," Bush said.

During the teleconference, Rose cited the importance of exporting value-added agricultural products. EEP benefits include knocking down unfair trade practices; opening up foreign markets to American producers; sending a strong signal to Europeans that the United States won't concede their heavily-subsidized markets; helping turn around American's status as a net importer of pork; and expanding domestic jobs through supportive industries, such as corn, feed, and soybeans.

During Congressional testimony recently, Rosa said that "value-added agricultural exports mean greatly expanded economic activity, increased tax revenues for the Treasury, as well as significantly increasing employment opportunities."

fessional," as well as a humanitarian and very special friend.

And his affection and concern for both animals and people is well known at World Dairy Expo. Allenstein has been the chief veterinarian in charge of dairy cattle health at Expo since the show's inception more than 25 years ago.

Allenstein graduated from Iowa State University. He soon joined a fellow college fraternity brother in veterinary practice in Whitewater, Wis. Six months later, Allenstein bought the practice and has since become one of the most respected bovine practitioners in the United States.

His leadership role extends to the Wisconsin Veterinary Medical Association, American Association of Bovine Practitioners, the American Veterinary Medical Association, and as an honorary member of the Klussendorf Association.

Allenstein is a faculty member of the University of Wisconsin Veterinary School. In 1991, he was named Distinguished Instructor of the Year by the school's students.

Brown was born in New York City in the late 1920's. Later, she moved to California to attend college at Berkeley. At a local county fair, she met Walter Brown. They married in 1948 and Brown began her life as a dairy woman.

Since that time, Brown has been an integral part of developing the Edyvean Jersey herd with her husband. She's known for having a special gift for calf raising, and she takes responsibility for all the farm finances.

Friends say she cans mountains of tomatoes, peaches, and pickles, while caring for her 50+ rose bushes.

But Joan Brown has done more. Beyond the typical volunteer activities of 4-H leader and cattle club officers, she is known for her hospital volunteer work. She has also taken in numerous children and "adopted" them — her "open-house, open heart" credo explains it, according to one of these now-grown children.

PREVENT PIGLET CRUSHING

BSM Model 90 Farrowing Crate

GALVANIZED!

Constructed from heavy gauge materials this crate is designed to reduce crushing, with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars makes for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminates the sow from carelessly dropping on the piglets.

This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as she lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

Somerset Fair Junior Dairy Show Winners Named

Gay N. Brownlee
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — It was a long and grueling day of work for some 105 FFA and 4-H club members at the county fair's Junior Livestock Show given the hot August weather. With sweaty bodies, unkempt hair and splotched white clothes resulting from about seven or more hours of showing their bovine, they performed like troopers, masking their "udder" weariness.

When it was over, Philka Pete Cavalier Vicky was the supreme champion, but owner Suzy Stutzman, 17, Friedens, could only think about a good shower and some shut-eye following a previous night's rest of only two and a half hours.

Born December 12, 1987, Vicky's breeder was Phillip D. Laughman from Thomasville. Her sire and dam were Straight-Pine Elevation Pete and Rock-Maple Cavalier Violet Red.

Stutzman, the daughter of Mike and Barbara Stutzman, has two younger sisters who are also active dairy show participants. She belongs to the Milkdrops 4-H Club.

Kirsten Miller's three-year-old cow, Quaker-Farm Astrojet Sue Ellen was named reserve grand champion. Born on Dec. 14, 1988, Ellen's breeder was Clarence Mark Miller, Boswell. Ellen's sire and dam were Bridon Astro Jet and Quaker-Farm Power Pac Miss Elly.

Miller, her elder brother and two younger sisters live with their parents, Mark and Martha Miller on a dairy farm near Boswell. Her 4-H Club is the Supermilkers.

The Ayrshire class grand champion owner was Joshua Vought, Meyersdale, with a spring yearling. Another spring yearling claimed reserve grand champion. It was owned by Caleb Vought, also from Meyersdale. Both young men belong to the Casselman Valley 4-H Club.

Grand champions in the Brown Swiss class were Tim Mostoller, Garrett for the FFA and Justin Fuls, Berlin in 4-H. Fuls also had the reserve grand champion.

Guernsey class grand champion belonged to Carrie Eckman, Hooversville, followed by Kristin Walker, Meyersdale, owner of the reserve grand champion.

Winners in the Jersey class were 4-H'er Ricki Johnson, Somerset, with the grand champion, and Marty Stutzman's cow in FFA. Stutzman comes from Meyersdale. Reserve grand champions belonged to Jason Baughman, Glencoe, FFA; Angelina Poligardo, Meyersdale; 4-H.

Champion Steer Named At Somerset Fair

Gay N. Brownlee
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — Fourteen-year-old Chris Schmuck of Rockwood knew his 1,215 pound Chianina market steer had a good chance for the grand champion honor, but still kept his elation low-key when it happened. For the proud teenager it was a new experience needing time for adjustment.

Schmuck, the son of Ron and Linda Schmuck, has three sisters and a brother, all of whom live on Deer Run Farm, aptly dubbed for the profuse number of graceful whitetailed deer parading over the 250 beef-farming acres.

Besides his steer, Schmuck, a member of the High Ridge 4-H Club, brought both rabbits and White Leghorn chickens to the county fair which took blue ribbons in their class.

Kevin Stahl showed the reserve grand champion, a bitter sweet victory for the 18-year-old from Somerset. It marked the fifth time that his steer got the reserve grand champion title and the fourth successive year it happened. But grand champions have always remained elusive for Stahl's well-cared for steers.

Despite their happiness, Robert and Doris Stahl, like their son, felt the poignancy of the moment when the final announcement came that "Buck," a Chi/Angus Cross weighing 1,225 pounds, like his predecessors, was Reserve Grand Champion.

Dan Ferko, 18, of Central City showed the County-bred champion with his 1,335 pound Angus Cross. Placing as the County-bred reserve champion was the 1,235-pound Limousin steer shown by Lindsay Schmuck of Rockwood.

The show saw some 71 steers judged for Type by Greg McKean, Mercer Co., and for Showmanship, by Mary Shick, Washington

The Somerset County grand champion steer is shown with owner Christopher Schmuck. Christy Sanner, fair queen and Greg McKean, judge, share the honors.

AGRICULTURE'S LEADING EDGE FFA

Envious Mule Sparks 16-Head Team

SCHAFFERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Schafferstown's 23rd annual Harvest Fair will have a 16-mule team pulling a covered wagon on Sept. 12 and 13. Visitors are invited to come and see the 16-mule team hitch and try to locate the envious mule.

The annual horse plowing contest at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 12 will have both horses and mules competing for the prizes. Since both horses and mules played leading roles in opening up and developing the potential resources of America in the 1700s, this event is considered to be the outstanding demonstration among all of Pennsylvania's Folk Festivities.

The horse pull will be held on Sunday and follows the Horse Parade at 12:30 p.m. The horse pull demonstrates the skill and power of draft horses and mules.

Cooking and baking demonstrations, using the massive 1771 bake oven, will provide a large number of tasting samples to treat visitors, and the Dutch kitchen will serve traditional Dutch foods.

Cider pressing, apple butter cooking, threshing, stone crushing, straw baling, and a 100-year-old sawmill, in addition to crafts and wagon rides, are some of the attractions on both days. The Harvest Exhibit features locally grown fruits, vegetables, and canned goods.

The Schaffer farm house, circa 1758 (which now reveals a mystery wall of mud and straw, two brick fireplaces and the cellar fireplace which had two pot stills attached) will be open to visitors. The log house over the spring will also be open.

Schafferstown is located at the junction of Routes 501 and 897, north of Lancaster. Admission is $2.50 and children under 12 are free.

KEEPING AMERICA ON THE GROW

This 16-mule team will pull a covered wagon on September 12 and 13. The horse plowing contest is set for Saturday, September 12, at 10 a.m.

Kralls Win Hog Derby For Second Year

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — For the second year in a row, Jason Krall and sister Stacy won the top awards at the recent southeast Pennsylvania Hog Derby.

Jason, 17, son of Glenn and Linda Krall, Lebanon, picked up champion rate of gain at the derby with an overall pounds lean gain of .955. Jason has been showing in the county 4-H swine club for nine years. Jason's sister, Stacy, 14, won reserve grand champion carcass with a pounds lean gain of .924. She has been showing six years.

Sarah Boy topped reserve overall champion with her entry, showing a pounds lean gain of .944.

"This program provides a real educational opportunity for kids," said Ken Winebark, Lebanon livestock agent. The experience provides the 4-H'ers with a chance to associate production aspects of raising swine with rate-of-gain in showing livestock.

Winebark said the derby, now in its second year, uses the National Pork Producers Council for gain per day on test. The hogs are also shown on foot and evaluated live. Measurements on the livestock are taken, including backfat, loin eye, and other measurements. The hogs are taken to slaughter, and carcass evaluations are made, including length, loin eye, and other evaluations.

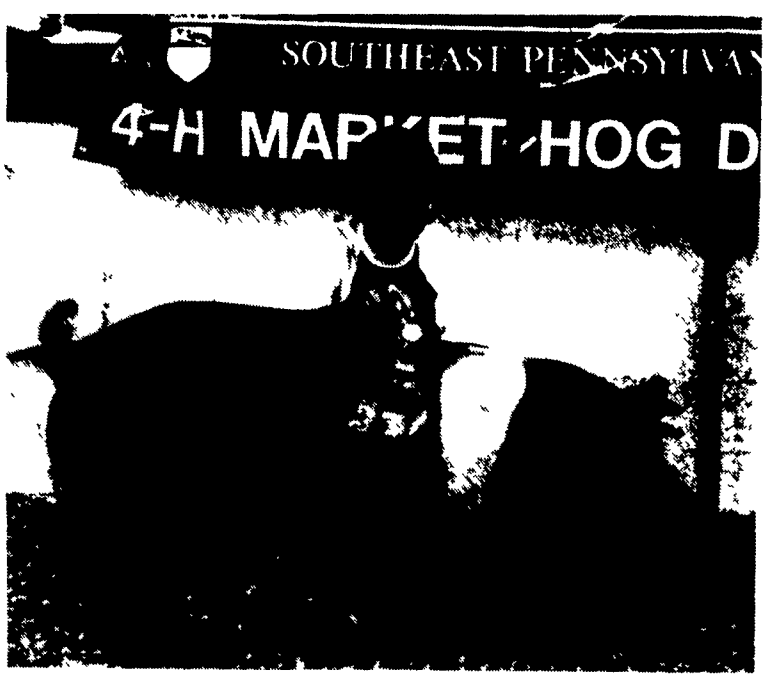
The two-day event including a show and evaluation by a panel of three judges, including Doug Clemens, Hatfield Quality Meats; Henry Holloway, a Hampshire and Yorkshire breeder from Maryland; and Bob Mikesell, swine feed specialist from White Oak Mills. The second day involved the carcass evaluation and quality meeting. The individual scores were combined and a mean score determined champion individuals, according to Winebark.

The derby included nine counties from southeast Pennsylvania. According to Winebark, there were 51 exhibitors, up nearly 20 from last year, making this year the biggest so far.

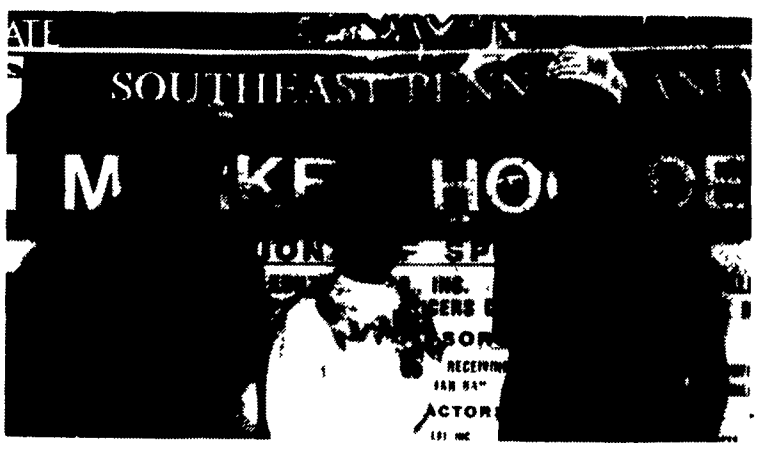
Of the number of entries, 18 were from Lebanon, the host county.

Dr. Ed Mills, Penn State meat specialist, shows the carcass that helped Jason Krall win the award for showing the overall grand champion on-hoof, on-rail market hog. Stacy Krall accepts a plaque and ribbons for brother Jason.

Jason Krall holds the ribbon for the grand champion rate of gain.



Dan Atkins helps out for John Risser and holds the ribbon Risser received for showing the grand champion market hog on foot.



Receiving two $250 educational awards, from the left, are Richard and Carol Kreider, who accept for son Brian, and John Risser.

National Brown Swiss Recongizes Production

BELOIT, Wis. — A number of cattle were recently recognized by the national Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association, headquartered in Beloit, Wis.

In Lebanon County, several cows owned by Gary Lee Mase were recognized for outstanding milk and milk component production. One cow has been listed on the Brown Swiss national honor roll for high production.

Those cows which make the national honor roll are those which have one of the top five, all time records for the age class.

Mase's Meadow Hill Titan Fabia, produced 28,660 pounds of milk, 918 pounds of fat and 929 pounds of protein on a 305 day lactation record. Her lactation continued and she was doubly recognized as among the all time top five 3-year-olds with a production of 33,430 pounds milk, 1,107 pounds of fat and 1,101 pounds of protein.

Four other cows from the Mase herd received national recognition for component production in excess of 900 pounds protein and 1,000 pounds fat.

The other Mase cows all have records on lactations which lasted from 305 to 365 days.

Those include, Meadow Hill Jubilant Missy, a 7-year-old with a record of 25,730 pounds milk, 1,062 pounds of fat and 829 pounds protein; Quiet Valley Jim Dandy, 7 years, 5 months, 28,010 pounds of milk, 974 pounds fat, 1,002 pounds protein; Jessie Improver Lena, 11 years, 28,230 pounds milk, 998 pounds fat and 993 pounds protein; and Meadow Hill Stylish Annette, 4 years, 7 months, 24,500 pounds milk, 915 pounds fat and 903 pounds protein.

Dean and Brenda Daubert, of McElhattan, received recognition for component production from two animals in their herd.

Freshening at 7 years, 2 months, Wind Mill Telstar Shamoo was recognized twice for fat and protein production above 900 pounds protein and 1,000 pounds fat; once after 305-days of lactation and then again after continuing the lactation with a final production of 30,370 pounds of milk, 1,151 pounds of fat and 1,038 pounds of protein.

Also recognized was the Dauberts' Shady Creek Target Bren Belva, which recorded a 365-day lactation started at 5 years, 1 month, that produced 26,680 pounds of milk, 873 pounds of fat and 929 pounds of protein.

Wind Mill Distinction Elissa, at 6 years, 7 months, started a lactation which produced 32,580 pounds of milk, 1,235 pounds of fat and 1,091 pounds of protein after more than 305 days. The cow was doubly recognized — once for production up to 305 days and again when her lactation extended beyond 305 days.

William Daubert's other cow to receive production recognition is Wind Mill Ingles Maggie Mary, which produced 26,050 pounds of milk, 955 pounds of fat and 909 pounds of protein. The lactation was more than 305 days.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Ralph and Henis Veenema, owners of ShiRaLoKen Farm, Deposit, New York, were named the Eastern regional winner of the 1992 Land Stewardship Award presented by the Angus Journal, official publication of the American Angus Association.

ShiRaLoKen Farm is a 250-head Angus operation utilizing 1,165 acres of hillside land on the western fringe of the Catskill Mountains. The farm consists of 110 acres of cropland, 690 acres of pasture and 365 acres of woodland.

The Veenemas purchased the farm in 1969, after the land had been neglected for five years. Their first step was to reclaim and renovate the land of an abandoned farm. With help from the Soil and Water Conservation District, Ralph planned the crop and pasture fields.

By 1977, all the potential pastures had been fenced in, and he decided to concentrate on improving the cropland. The first step was drainage, both surface and subsurface.

To utilize his resources, he used some of his drainage projects to supply a better defined water source for cattle in pastures far from streams.

The farm's wise use of fencing makes working and moving cattle easy. Cattle can easily be moved to different pastures, separated for veterinarian work or loaded on trailers for transport.

After much research on pasture rotation and attending seminars on conservation, a decision was made to divide 318 acres of pasture into seven paddocks for short-duration grazing.

This change fits in well with the Veenemas' strive for efficiency. It eliminates much of the time formerly spent brushhogging the pastures and lets the cattle do that work. By restricting the range of the cattle, they make more efficient use of all available forage in the paddock. When the grass is grazed down to 2 or 3 inches in height, the cattle are moved to another paddock. This allows the previous one to recuperate.

Over the past 15 years, ShiRaLoKen Farm has installed many conservation practices from barnyard water management to conservation tillage. But Ralph feels that rotational grazing will pay the most dividends.

They have also implemented 14 acres of stripcropping, 74 acres of conservation tillage and 26 acres of permanent vegetative cover.

The Veenemas and manager John Butler received the 1990 Delaware County Conservation Farm Award for their extensive conservation management practices.

Ralph and Henis Veenema were featured in the 1992 Herd Reference Edition of the Angus Journal. Other recognized winners included: (West) Tom Elliott, N-Bar Land and Cattle Co., Grass Range, Montana; (Central) Bruce and Scott Foster, Seldom Rest Farms, Niles, Michigan; and (South) W.B. Herrington, Bilmar Angus Farms, Mt. Calm, Texas.

The Angus Journal presents the Land Stewardship Award annually to four regional winners who have demonstrated wise use of resources and conservation practices.

Dairy, Beef Producers Meet

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Cattlemen's Association recently hosted an unprecedented, producer-to-producer meeting between dairy and beef producers during its midyear meeting to initiate better communications on issues of mutual interest.

"The meeting was very successful," said NCA Agriculture Policy Committee Chairman Bob Drake, Davis Okla. "Both dairy and beef producers understand they represent different constituencies with sometimes different philosophies towards policy solution. However, we agreed that it is important to discuss these issues in some forum so that we can continue the communications to better work on those issues together."

Drake said that the meeting served to break the ice on a lack of communication that had developed in recent years. After several meetings between the NCA and National Milk Producers Federation officers, the idea of a roundtable evolved through the desire of NCA producer leaders to organize a meeting to develop a better understanding of dairymen's concerns.

The unstructured meeting spurred discussion on upcoming issues such as wetlands, endangered species, clean water, food safety and animal health regulations. It was unanimous that agriculture must work together and speak with one voice in Washington, D.C. The group identified producer-to-producer meetings as the best way to improve communications.

"The group decided that despite differences between the two industries, we would meet in the future to try and understand the other's point of view," Drake said.

"We also agreed that we would not use differences of philosophy as issues to generate membership."

Dairymen at the meeting said they agreed that it was a good first step. "We hit a home run on the first ptich," commented one participant. Other dairy producers said they hoped that cattlemen heard and understood that dairymen want to work with beef producers.

There was also discussion on ways to spur communications between the two industries at the local level.

Market Swine Winners Named At Somerset Fair

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — It was a good college send-off for 18-year-old Michael Frazee of Fort Hill, when his hog was named grand champion at the Somerset Co. Fair's Market Swine Show last week. His freshman classes at Frostburg State University, Frostburg, Md. began the same week.

The 240-pound Hampshire Cross was the first champion Frazee had during his years with the High Ridge 4-H Club.

Frazee's family operates a farrow to finish hog business and also raises Charolais beef cattle on their 560-acre mountain farm. He says the crops, especially corn, are often attacked by deer and black bears which like to smash down a sitting area, then tear down the surrounding corn stalks.

His parents, Dean and Debbie, also have two daughters.

Reserve grand champion was owned by nine-year-old Jeremy Sechler of Somerset. The proud but bashful youngster was nearly speechless, but had a telltale ear-to-ear grin. He managed to say, "It's my first year."

Sechler is the third of three boys born to Wayne and Vicki Sechler, also with a younger sister. He, too, belongs to the High Ridge 4-H Club, and, according to his mother, loves everything on the family Holstein dairy farm.

Mary Shick of Washington Co., a livestock agent was the Type judge. Showmanship was judged by Chris McCahren of Mifflintown.

Money Made Calving Heifers Early

TERRY L. MADDOX
Huntingdon County
Extension Director

Many producers spend less time planning a herd replacement policy than the dollars and cents of this management issue justify.

Cows are culled to avoid trouble, control herd size, or meet cash needs said Bennett Cassell, dairy specialist at Virginia Tech.

Age at first freshening seems to just happen rather than being planned. Most estimates of rearing costs per heifer are well over $1,000 and are higher for older heifers even with less costly inputs during growth.

With 35 percent culling, the number of replacement heifers required for a 100-cow herd increases from 70 if heifers freshen at 24 months to 105 for 36-month-old first calf heifers.

An average herd must keep 15 more heifers to freshen at 29 months of age compared to 24 months. The $15,00 to $18,000 those heifers cost would make a nice addition to most herds' incomes.

Recent research at Washington State University suggests freshening heifers even earlier than 24 months and providing a longer calving interval for additional growth and development after first calving.

It is easy to delay heifer freshening since rearing can be less intensive; heifers are larger at freshening and thus compete better with mature cows, and their yields go up.

However, easier doesn't mean more profitable. Costs of delayed freshening outweigh the benefits and represent an opportunity for considerable savings to profit conscious dairy producers.

The Keys To Cow Cooperation

Chasing a wandering cow into a milking parlor or pushing an animal into a holding pen can be frustrating for a modern dairy producer.

With mechanized equipment and facilities, they have exceeded the technological expectations of their predecessors. Yet each year, excessive time and energy is still spent physically moving dairy cows into the parlor.

Purdue University animal scientist Jack Albright has researched animal behavior techniques which, at a minimal cost, can reduce the physical requirements of moving livestock. These techniques also can increase the efficiency of the available dairy facilities, equipment, and human resources.

Albright said that through the proper training of cows and milking parlor operators, cows can be induced to cooperate within the system instead of being forced to conform.

He has identified several techniques to minimize the physical labor requirement and get the greatest number of cows in and out of the parlor in the shortest amount of time. The techniques are designed to maximize milk production and minimize employee stress and frustration.

Provide dairy cows with a consistent environment. Producers should use the same vocal commands at each milking and have gates open and ready for the cows to enter.

Music can add to a consistent, pleasant environment, benefiting both the milker and the cow. Music provides an environment which the cow becomes comfortable.

Retail Food Self-Inspection Program Begins

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has prepared a Retail Food Establishment Self-Inspection Program, according to Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff. The program is designed to supplement ongoing departmental inspection efforts and existing store programs.

Under the program, managers of retail food stores are given a five-page listing of items designed to ensure the safety of foods throughout their establishments. A sheet used to log refrigeration temperatures is also in the packet.

"This gives retail store managers an important inspection tool to assist in their established food safety programs," Wolff said. "Through the efforts of the Department and the retail industry, consumers are assured continued safety and quality of the food supply."

The inspection programs were mailed to 40 supermarket chains in early August. The program has been well received by the supermarkets and will be expanded to include independently owned food stores and convenience stores.

Master Farmer Visits Russia To Compare Notes

the privatization of farms was forming," Moyer said. "They are trying to get the land back in the hands of the private farmers. This is their goal, but it is still a Communist country, and they don't sell the land; they only loan it with no guarantee of future ownership. It is only a promise of the government and the local farmers are not stupid. When the leaders are not present, they confide that the promises of the government are suspect.

"They were promised private land for decades. Then something would get started, and the government would take it from them again. That's why they hesitate to go ahead with farming now."

The group made a 2500 mile trip in Russia from Moscow to Kursh, to Voronezh, to Volgograd and back to Moscow. While the area covered looks very small on the total map of the former Soviet Union, the visit was to the heart of the fertile black soil region along the Seim river. While the individuals on the tour had requested to see private farms, the officials mostly had excuses as to why these farms could not be seen.

"They wanted to show us only the best farms so they took us out to the hills to see the vast farming area of rich soils," Moyer said "But the soil was hard as rock. They had no measurable rain since June."

The one real dairy farm they did see was visited when a taxi was hired privately. Half of the dairy stalls were empty. Cows were being slaughtered because the farmers could not afford to keep them.

Large fields are plowed without regard to conservation, and the group tried to teach the Russian farmers by showing photographs of how it is done here.

The markets in town were primitive. Produce was displayed on the ground. A side of beef would be hanging in the market, and a man with a cleaver would chop out the cut you wanted.

The group met a family that would like to have an exchange visit with a small family in America. In addition, before the trip, a Russian family that has immigrated to the local area provided Moyer with a few words of greeting to help him communicate on the trip.

Through these contacts, Moyer hopes to continue his communication with the Russian people.

"I saw what Communisium did to what had been the second most powerful country in the world," Moyer said. "No birds sing. They only have a few English sparrows. The tools are primitive. Brooms are made from white birch twigs and shovels hand made from tin. Seventy percent of the grain is lost from field to bakery because of old equipment and poor management.

"The people are clean, and they still believe in God even after years of forbidden religious expression," Moyer said. "They are not only hungry for food, they are hungry for information too.

"We take so much for granted. I thought, how could it be so?"

Downey Crowned Maryland Farm Queen

High School activities claim much of her spare time. Her interest in music is evident by the instruments she plays, clarinet, fiddle, violin and organ. She is a member of the Williamsport High School Blue Band, concert and marching band, member of Wind Ensemble, and First Chair clarinet. She has been invited to perform in Europe with American Music Abroad. The Student Council and French Club are also part of her student activities.

Dawn's farm and home responsibilities include feeding, grooming and training their 4-H animals, cleaning and maintaining the milking parlor, office work and some field work.

Her fish bowl question asked her to explain the importance of Farm Bureau. "Farm Bureau is the voice of agriculture, farmers for farmers," she answered. "They are our representatives in Annapolis and Washington. Farm Bureau is also where farmers can gather as a family to discuss and solve problems." An avid spokesperson for American agriculture, she said, "American agriculture is the envy of the world. The average American farmer feeds 95 Americans and 33 persons abroad".

Dawn is an active member of Zion Lutheran Church and Sunday School and participated in National Lutheran Youth Gathering in Dallas, Texas this year. Her plans for the future are to attend a four-year college and major in elementary education and public relations.

The Maryland Farm Bureau and Maryland State Fair presented Dawn with a $2000 scholarship and General Motors provided the use of a GMC Jimmy for 90 days.

The Farm Bureau Queen's Court included First runner-up, Heather Hull, Carroll County; Second runner-up, Amanda Fry, Kent County; Third runner-up, Jennifer Trout, Harford County; and Fourth runner-up, Maggie Boyden, Charles County.

Judges for the contest were Kim Bower-Spence, Associate Editor, "Pennsylvania Farmer"; Linda Gifford, Director Member Relations, Massachusetts Farm Bureau; Jim Werner, Representative American Farm Bureau Federation. Emcee for the evening was John Butler, Field Services Director of Maryland Farm Bureau. Entertainment was furnished by John Cocuzzi Quartet.

Each of the county queens gave a prepared speech about their farming background, 4-H, community and county history. A fish bowl question was drawn for an impromptu answer. The queens met with judges prior to the evening contest for a formal interview and were scored 25 percent for farm, home and community responsibilities, 25 percent for general appearance, 25 percent for speaking ability and 25 percent for personality and friendliness.

Field Day Attracts Farmers

Experts in their field spoke next to fields specifically plotted, planted, and prepared for Field Day observations and demonstrations. District manager for the Juniata Conservation District, Ann Harshberger, kept the program moving under graying skies while the speakers packed as much workable information as possible into their talks, allowing time for questions.

By 1:30 p.m., drizzle set in, but most field tours at Wilbur and Doug Brubaker's Double "B" Grain Farm were completed, and the three touring hay wagons headed back to Brubaker's machine shed to finish up.

Field Day sponsors Wilbur and Doug Brubaker, The Juniata County Conservation District, The Juniata Valley Crop Management Association, The Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council, The Pennylvania State Cooperative Extension Service, and the USDA Soil Conservation Service hope to improve upstream soil conservation efforts that will reduce soil loss and eventually help restore the Chesapeake Bay.

Residue Management

Joel Myers, state agronomist for the Soil Conservation Service, urged farmers to look at crop residue as a sod — a soil cover to prevent erosion.

At one site, Myers offered two methods for measuring residue — visual observation by looking straight down rather than across a field to compare the ground you see per residue you see, and by line transect method.

Later on, Myers referred to a green handout with these considerations:

- Residue levels using no-till in the entire rotation will build up, providing a more uniform level of residue throughout the season and from year to year. This layer will protect the soil to prevent erosion during intense rainfall.
- Continuous soil cover will reduce potential for extreme erosion during high intensity rainfall periods and more closely align to meet Pennsylvania Clean Streams Law.
- Farming higher levels of residue will provide the operator with more cropping options, may also reduce the need for some additional conservation practices, and should reduce labor and expenses by reducing the number of practices which are carried out with tillage equipment.
- Tips on maximizing crop residue levels after planting include even distribution of residues after harvest and to till only when needed to solve a real problem, such as shallowing up tillage operations unless compaction is a serious problem.

Tilling 3-6 inches deep will reduce fuel costs, wear and tear on equipment, may reduce stone picking, and will increase the amount of surface residues.

Another tip was to select the proper tillage equipment/-attachments and the sequence of tillage operations. Use primary tillage equipment only for primary tillage operations.

Some field cultivators may be used as the only tillage operation performed where residue amounts are already low and the soil is not too hard. Disks cause compaction and also bury residue. Use only on lighter textured soils in a situation where a field cultivator can be used to follow the disk.

Equip field cultivators and chisels with sweeps or straight teeth. No-till planters and drills not only are essential for no-till planting, but they can reduce the need for extensive seedbed preparation by leveling the preparing the seedbed for each row that is planted in mulch and conventional planting operations.

The first step in determining surface residue after planting is to know how much residue is produced by the crop in question (based on crop yield) at the time of harvest.

Carry out actual measurement of residue under different conditions to learn how to achieve the desired levels of residue to meet your plan requirements.

Charts for calculating tillage effects on residue levels are only guidelines. Actual measurements will provide better information under individual farm conditions.

Plan ahead to supplement crop residues with cover crops as needed when residues are removed or crops are grown that do not produce adequate levels of residue or during adverse growing conditions such as drought. Cover crops may be harvested in the spring to provide livestock feed.

Compaction

Lynn Hoffman, senior research associate and manager of Rocksprings Research Farm, wants farmers to think in terms of conservation tillage, leading to no-till to relieve soil compaction, which then produces better crops.

"If it doesn't affect corn growth, why are we worrying about it?" Hoffman said.

Symptoms of compaction include:

- Patterns of poor crop growth in fields as opposed to entire fields, usually due to machinery traffic patterns.
- Crop stunting.
- Fertilizer deficiency symptoms in fields where roots cannot get to available fertilizer.
- Crop stress.

According to Hoffman, compaction is caused by:

- Heavy axle loads - manure spreaders, fertilizer, and lime spreaders.
- Wet soils. The price paid for working wet soils is compaction. "The big reason for seeing more compaction nowadays is we're using bigger tractors with a cab that keeps you nice and warm and dry, and years ago, you'd have figured something else to do that day when it was too miserable to be out there. We tend to be out there anyway. We've taken the moldboard plow out of the program and chisel that doesn't show the sin of working wet soil as obviously as a moldboard plow."
- Excessive traffic. 75 percent of compaction occurs the first time out on a field in the spring. Further field traffic increases the problem.
- Tillage equipment. A disk pan at 4-5 inches from an offset disk can cause enough compaction that, under stress conditions, the roots have a tough time getting through.

Avoid compaction by:

- Reducing axle weights. Hoffman urges farmers to put tandems on equipment, not duals. Duals can be used for traction, but do not reduce compaction. They spread it over a greater area.
- Reduce number of trips across fields.
- Reduce amount of tillage.
- Wider tires do not reduce compaction. They reduce depth and spread it out.
- Timing. Stay off wet fields. "A lot easier said than done," Hoffman said. "Especially in spring, or worse, in the fall if it needs to be combined in a wet field. Anything we can do to stay off the wet fields will help, especially if you're going to no-till."

To correct compaction, Hoffman urges farmers to first identify the problem, then decide what to do about it.

Hoffman used a ½ -inch iron rod with a handle to determine the depth of soil compaction. "I'm finding a tight spot in the soil at about that depth," Hoffman said, referring to a 6-inch mark.

Hoffman explained that farmers do not need sophisticated equipment to correct compaction. "Pay close attention to what your crops are telling you and find the reasons for the distress," he said.

Alfalfa Management

John Baylor, professor emeritus, agronomy at Penn State, described alfalfa as a deep taproot perennial plant whose fall management is essential to total seasonal management.

"If we have a multiple pest resistant variety, if we maintain a good fertility program, and if we have carried out a reasonably good cutting schedule (about 35 days) during the growing season, we have more flexibility with how we manage that crop in the fall as far as taking it into winter in good shape," he said. "But we're still better off if we could maintain 4-6 weeks before freeze-up to give that plant a chance to build up reserves before it goes into the winter."

Baylor added that not many varieties are resistant to leaf diseases. While leaf diseases do not affect the life of the plant, they do affect quality by causing excessive leaf drop.

Nitrogen Quick Test

Crop Management Association technician Greg Hostetter said the importance of a nitrogen quick test is to identify the level of nitrogen in the soil at a time when you might be considering a sidedress, when corn is about 12 inches high.

Crop Management Association member Art Zug offered his observations in relation to his 380 crop-acre farm.

"We use a lot of manure in our situation and don't know the value of the manure until we test for it," he said. "We do have an injection system. In previous years, we have used it to incorporate the nitrogen between the corn rows. It is a very economical system and, as Greg said, you use it if you have to , and if you don't, you don't. It's also an environmental safeguard."

Later in the program, Hostetter described his year, month by month, as crop technician for the Brubaker farm. Hostetter, who covers 37 farms in Juniata, Perry, Huntingdon, and Mifflin counties, works with farmers to save them as much money as possible, using chemicals only when needed.

Hay samples were judged by John Baylor after Lynn Hoffman discussed the value of various tillage methods. Jim Huber of Triple H described the drill demonstration.

John Baylor, agronomy, professor emeritus, believes fall alfalfa management is important to healthier plant growth in the spring.

Lynn Hoffman, senior research associate and manager of Rocksprings Research Farm, told farmers that we tend to work soils wetter than our forefathers did and that we pay for it with compaction, which affects plant growth.

Joel Myers, state agronomist for the Soil Conservation Service, explains the importance of determining residue that can act as a sod to prevent erosion.

Tioga County Cows Take Home Awards At Northeast Holstein Show

C.J. HOUGHTALING
Tioga Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co.) — Esbern Mark Corinne Connie, a 4-year-old, took four champion awards at the Northeast Pennsylvania Holstein Champion Show held here much to the surprise and delight of Olivia Courtney.

As the 13-year-old daughter of Harld and Sherry Courtney of Mansfield led her cow through each class it qualified for, her eyes widened and her smile broadened with each blue ribbon the bovine earned.

Placing the cow first in both the open and junior 4-year-old class, Judge John Beerwort of Knowlton, Quebec, Canada, said Esbern Mark Corinne Connie simply overpowered the rest of the animals in her class. She showed better angularity, good dairyness, and since he liked the height and width of the udder, Courtney's cow was named best udder in her class.

These were also the same reasons the judge awarded the animal senior champion, youth senior champion, grand champion, and youth grand champion. In the grand champion division, however, Beerwort siad that he throught the cow's teats were nicer placed than those of the other contenders.

Esbern Mark Corinne Connie, sired by Walkway Chief Mark, was born Nov. 21, 1987. Breeder Bernard G. Courtney had chosen Esbern Dandy Etta Corinne as her dam.

Earning blue ribbons is nothing new for Courtney nor her cow, Connie. First shown by Leroy Plance as a senior calf at the Northeast Holstein Champion Show, the animal won first place. This year at the Tioga County Fair, Courtney's cow took first in her class, senior champion and grand champion.

The pair plan to attend the State Open Show at Penn State Sept. 11 and the 4-H Show in Harrisburg Sept. 22.

Reserve grand and senior champion went to Gordon and Dorothy Wood's Gor-Wood-D HM Eureka. The animal also placed first in the senior 3-year-old class. Naming her best udder for her class, Beerwort said he liked the overall balance of the animal and the height and width of her udder.

Gordon Wood of Mansfield also received the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards for his animals at the show. Other first place awards that went to Wood were dam and daughter class for Gor-Wood-D Valiant Racqette, a 6-year-old, and her daughter, Gor-Wood-D Jeffery Riunite, a 3-year-old. Riunite took first in the junior 3-year-old class and was named best udder. The judge commented on how much he liked her through the neck and shoulders and thought her lines were cleaner.

In the six years and over class, Wood's Gor-Wood-D Warden Fond Memory earned a first place because, according to Beerwort, "She has too much style, balance, and scale compared to the others in the class...And she walks on a real good set of legs."

Another product of Gordon and Dorthy Woods, Gor-Wood-D Star B Splendor took first in the senior 2-year-old class.

Commenting on his reasons for choosing her over the others, Beerwort said, "She has more front end and width of chest." He also liked the way her neck comes out and the shoulders set nicer.

A red Holstein, Gor-Wood-D Rhythm Maiden Red, took first in the dry cow 4-year-and-under class, because the judge said he liked her front end. In height and width, she overpowerd the cow coming in second.

In the dary cow 5-year-and-over class, Wood's Gor-Wood-D Jet Rona placed first. "This cow walks with style," said Beerwort. "I like the quality of the bone in the rear leg."

The Gor-Wood-D farm also took the first place ribbon in the best three senior females class.

A milker in the 100,000-pound class was named youth reserve grand champion as well as youth senior champion. Jeremy Braund of Troy owns the animal, which placed first in both the junior and senior divisions of the 100,000-pound class.

Beerwort said of Braund Valley Valiant Charm that he liked the height and width of her udder and noted that she walks out easier than other animals in her class.

Meyers Wins Big At Franklin Show

GREENCASTLE (Franklin Co.) — Crystal Meyers, 13, of Greencastle never won a grand champion, reserve grand champion, champion fitter or shower, but recently brought her finest talents and 4-H steers to the Franklin County Fair and walked away with all the above honors.

Crystal thought this is the time to put it together, and that's what she did to impress judge John Eaton, Jr. of York County. Crystal placed 1st in the intermediate division for showing and fitting before being awarded champion shower and fitter.

Brad Divelbiss of Greencastle received 1st among the novice fitters, and Matt Hawbaker of Mercersburg won the showing honor.

Cheryl Hawbaker of Mercersburg walked away with the showing and fitting honors in the junior division. Senior division fitting honors went to Spencer Walk of Chambersburg. Karen Eshleman of Greencastle received the senior showing champion trophy.

Valerie Bittinger of Chambersburg won the lightweight champion with her 1,060-pound Angus Chianina crossbred steer.

A 1,080-pound Limousin steer won the mediumweight class shown by Ryan Eshleman of Greencastle.

Crystal Meyers won the light and medium weight class with her 1,120 and 1,180 pounds Angus/Chianina crossbred steer, and they went on to be reserve and grand champion, respectively.

Lorinda Hawbaker of Mercersburg won the heavyweight division with her 1,225-pound crossbred steer.

Hard Work, Goal Setting Are Priorities

Persistence Nets Championships For Reiffs

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

STRASBURG (Lancaster Co.) — It isn't luck that allows Lyndon and Lisa Reiff consistently to win top honors for their sheep in county and state competitions.

"It's hard work and a priority in our lives," said Lyndon, who estimates that he and his sister spend three hours every day exercising and feeding their sheep.

"For five years, we were at the bottom — and I mean the bottom in every competition," he said.

Through membership in the 4-H club and by talking with other sheep owners, the Reiffs learned what to look for when purchasing a sheep and how to improve it through nutrition and exercise.

The Reiffs are adament in their praise of Elvin Yeagley, a 4-H leader. "If it wasn't for him, we'd never be where we are today," he said. "The 4-H Club is really geared to help first-year members learn to pick out a good lamb and feed it well."

Those who visit the Reiffs two-acre farmette in the wooded fringes of Strasburg may suspect that the Reiffs sheep are a bit pampered in comparison with most sheep raised in the county. The Reiffs' sheep have their own playground equipment. There's a hugh wooden ramp on which the sheep play King of the Mountain. Hurdles are placed sporadically in the fenced off area for the sheep to jump and play.

The play equipment isn't available merely to entertain the sheep. The purpose is to encourage the sheep to run and jump, which develops firmness and muscle.

The sheep are not fed like most sheep. Instead, they are led from their pen to a garage where the sheep must stand in an upright position to eat their meals. Standing, according to Lyndon, stretches the hind muscles and strengthens them — a positive quality in competition.

The sheep are fed individually on a special diet developed by a nutritionist. "It's top of the line nutrition," Lyndon said. "Our nutritionist is a former veterinarian who studied sheep and nutrition — and that has really helped us."

Now that the Reiffs have a good idea of the nutrition required, Lloyd, the siblings' father, often figures out the minerals required. The sheep are fed more protein during show times and topdressed with corn.

"Because we feed them individually, we know exactly how much each sheep is eating. That way a bigger sheep can't push a smaller sheep away from the food," Lyndon said.

Seven years ago, Lyndon purchased his first sheep, a Dorset named Hamilton. Lyndon built a doghouse for him that he named Hamilton Place.

"I picked him out because he was cute," Lyndon said. Surprisingly Hamilton was named reserve champion — pure coincidence, according to Lyndon, "because after that, I went through five years of being on the bottom."

He watched as two sisters from New Holland consistently won top awards for their sheep. As the Reiffs' sheep began to do better, Lyndon and Lisa set a goal: to beat the two girls from New Holland."

With their sheep, the Reiffs accomplished their goal of beating the two sisters in competition. Now, the Reiffs find that many sheep exhibitors have set a goal to beat them.

"The competition is good even if it gets a bit rough at times," Lyndon said. "Nobody goes to a show to lose. Some (exhibitors) don't like that we win so often. Some accuse us of feeding the sheep steroids, but that isn't true. Anyone can do well if they want to. It's a matter of priority. Lisa and I put aside sports and everything to concentrate on sheep. Lots of kids who show sheep are also into a lot of other things, but we aren't. Raising quality sheep is what Lisa and I choose to do and that requires hours of work each day, not just at show time."

A large cupboard overflowing with trophies and ribbons attest to the fact that the Reiffs are successful with sheep. Each year, they put away the trophies from the previous year. The 1991 trophies include a banner for showing the Pennsylvania Farm Show reserve champion.

"That was a major surprise," Lisa said. One that has set a new goal for Lyndon, who is now determined to win the Pennsylvania grand champion trophy.

"I realize that's the goal of a lot of others who got some good ones (sheep) too," Lyndon said. "In a way it gets harder and harder to win because other competitors are improving their sheep also."

Each time the Reiffs attend a show, they take turns choosing the sheep from the flock that they want to show. Because judges have different viewpoints on what makes the best sheep, the choosing isn't easy. "Generally, we try to pick out four completely different sheep so that we have at least one the judge will like," Lyndon said.

Lisa tends to pick out an average sheep that is considered a complete package. Lyndon prefers a heavy muscled sheep with a big front end.

The Reiffs estimate that they enter shows every other week during fair season. In addition to local fairs, they like the competition of the big shows such as the Pennsylvania Farm Show, Keystone, and the Jack Pot.

(Turn to Page B4)

The Reiff family in Strasburg includes Lisa and Lyndon and parents, Lloyd and Laura. Another son, Lloyd was not available for pictures.

Lisa Reiff watches the sheep as they jump over the hurdles placed intermittently in the area fenced off for the sheep.

Lyndon said that having the sheep feed in this position builds muscle in their hindquarters. Feeding them individually also allows them to make sure each one gets an adequate portion of the nutrionally balanced feed.

Championships For Reiffs

"At Keystone, we never even have gotten close to winning, because open shows are much more difficult," Lyndon said.

The Reiffs purchased lambs from many different breeders such as Don Witt, Tim Fleener, and Tom Slack.

"I like to see how much I can buy with the money I have to spend," Lyndon said. "It's totally unrealistic to focus on some sheep because they sell for $3,000 — and we don't have that kind of money."

Talking about money, the brother and sister pool the prize money and the expenses. They are saving it toward college. Lyndon plans to study architecture while the thought of being a corporate lawyer fascinates Lisa.

Lyndon, who is 18 years old, will be a senior at Lampeter Strasburg and Lisa, who is 14, will be a freshman.

"When I'm too old to compete in 4-H, I'd like to start a Dorset breeding flock," Lyndon said. "I always liked Dorsets the best of all the breeds, but it is harder to win a show with one than with a black-faced sheep."

Despite most judges preferring black-faced sheep, Lyndon is pleased that he did win a show with a Dorset last year.

"It won't be nearly as much fun to compete when Lyndon can't anymore," said Lisa, who believes that their sheep projects have formed a close bond between them.

"Most of my friends don't understand why I like to raise sheep," Lisa said. "They say, 'Aw, you're going to sell such a cute sheep and have it killed?'"

Lisa said, "When you know you're raising them for that purpose, you don't get nearly as attached."

Nevertheless, Lisa, who does much of the cooking since her mother manages the Kitchen Kettle House in Intercourse, admits that she can't cook lamb because it would be too hard knowing that she had raised it.

Since Lyndon works part time at a shoe store and part time in his dad's and uncle's landscaping business (R & R Landscaping) during the summer, he doesn't spend as much time with the sheep as Lisa does. He also was part of a mission team that worked at a retirement home in Florida.

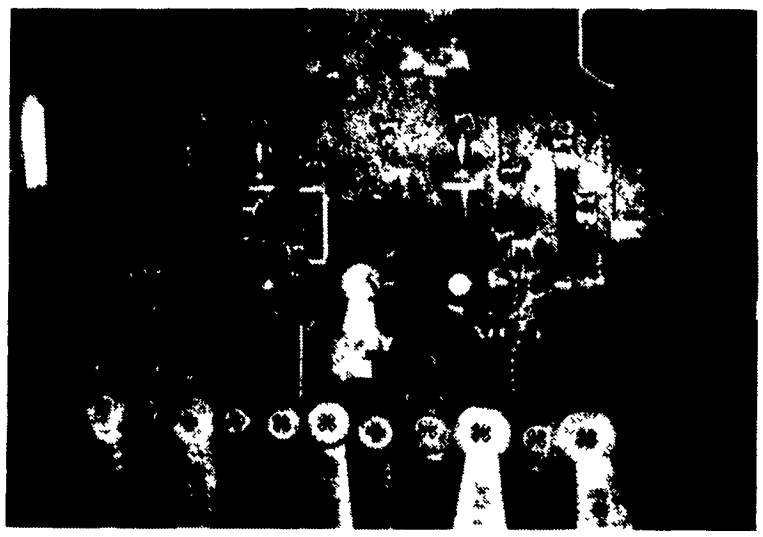
Lisa estimates that she spends one hour feeding the sheep each morning and three hours feeding and exercising them in the evening.

"I used to like taking care of the sheep better than showing them," Lisa said, "but now I like showing better."

As far as a favorite breed, Lisa said, "Suffolk, crossbred, Hampshires — I like them all. But Dorsets seem to be calmer."

When Lisa is inside the house and hears the sheep bleating, she can tell each one by its bleat. "The smaller ones bawl more," she said. "We got a laid-back olf named Frank who never bawls."

The siblings' parents are Lloyd and Laura Reiff. They have a 21-year-old brother Lloyd, who never got into sheep showing, but showed steers.



These trophies, ribbons, and plaques show the success the Reiffs had in one year of sheep competition. Each year, the Reiffs put the previous year's trophies and ribbons in the attic and begin with a fresh accumulation of awards.

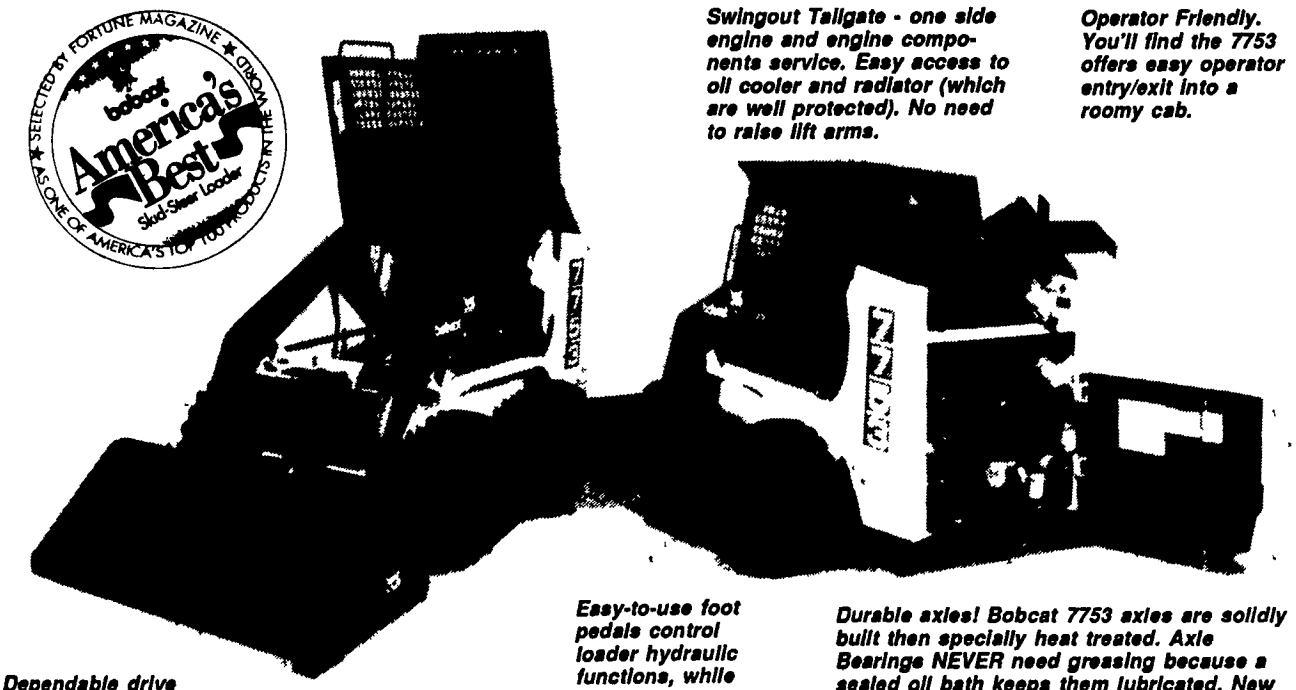
Bobcat 7753 Long-Wheelbase Skid-Steer Loader

It's What's Inside That Counts!



Swingout Tailgate - one side engine and engine components service. Easy access to oil cooler and radiator (which are well protected). No need to raise lift arms.

Operator Friendly. You'll find the 7753 offers easy operator entry/exit into a roomy cab.

Dependable drive chains that NEVER need adjusting. The "bow tie" design uses prestressed, heavy-duty drive chains in two short continuous loops per side. That means long-life in the most rugged use and NO periodic, time-consuming drive chain adjustments.

Easy-to-use foot pedals control loader hydraulic functions, while two steering levers allow precise maneuverability.

Durable axles! Bobcat 7753 axles are solidly built then specially heat treated. Axle Bearings NEVER need greasing because a sealed oil bath keeps them lubricated. New axle hub design protects axle seal from damage from wire or twine. Hub is easily removed if service is required.

Experience America's Best.
Melroe company has over 30 years of skid-steer loader experience — longer than anyone else. That's one of the reasons Fortune Magazine has twice recognized the Bobcat loader as one of the 100 products "America Builds Best."

Great Serviceability!
The Bobcat 7753 has been designed to be serviced quickly. For example, there's single-side access to the transversely-mounted engine, a lift-out oil cooler for easy cleaning and a tip-up cab to expose hydraulic and hydrostatic components for easy entry. For repairs, the exclusive BOSS® System can help quickly diagnose system problems. On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Work, you'll be happy to know, is "in."

At least it is fashion-wise, according to one of the latest trends supposedly sweeping the cutting-edge high-fashion setters.

Rejoice, farm folk friends, for the sort of chore duds we don on a daily basis are being sought out by the hip, the hep, the rockers and the rappers.

Work clothes are "hot." On the other hand, one fashion report I recently read quoted a boutique owner as noting that the manual labor look is "cool." All depends on your preferred terminology.

Sturdy cotton twill jackets like equipment repairmen might wear on a chilly day and the style of light coveralls favored by our daughter when she used to milk or clip cows are reportedly turning up on the racks of funky boutiques. So are heavy work boots and "farmer" style caps.

And, by gosh, denim is BIG again. But then, 'round the farm, denim is always big.

What other fabric, for goodness sake, can be dragged through the mud by an obstinate show calf, hung on the yard fence for a couple of days, wrapped around a greasy part hauled to the equipment dealer, mildew while wrapped in a damp ball halfway under the pickup seat - then after a good laundering be worn, acceptably, to call on your favorite banker?

Our denim jeans nearly always see a second life as a pair of denim shorts. While, once upon a time, no farmer worth his hayfork would be caught dead with knees exposed, our resident crew comfortably bares hairy legs under denim cutoffs come summer's worst heat. (Unless we're unloading hay or straw bales.)

Colored denim is resurging with this wave of fashion, turning up in the likes of pink denim jumpers. Our dresser drawers embrace garb in a variety of denim shades - all hues of blue, except for my ratty pair of beige denim cutoffs..

Then there's the continuing high-fashion popularity of that farm classic of recent years - the tee shirt. Colored tee-shirts become standard garb hereabouts just as soon as the weather warms enough for them to hang their quilted flannel shirts on the nearest tractor hydraulic lever and then forget where they left them.

We generally lay in a new supply each spring, in anticipation of the sunsplashed season ahead. I have rooted through an entire counter of tee-shirts on sale to find extra-larges in their preferred colors.

And checkout clerks give me one of those cocked-head, raised eyebrow looks when I check out with eight or ten colored pocket-tees at one time.

Actually, the popularity of these favorites has enabled me to sort of color-code the Farmers. They're a dead giveaway as to who's operating a tractor or piece of equipment, even in a distant field.

Bright, jaunty, neon-like shades will immediately be claimed by the youngest Farmer. This spring's tee-shirt sale acquisitions included one in a bright fuchsia and an equally brilliant melon-orange shade, which he promptly snagged from the stack and carted off, along with one in fire-engine red.

After endless launderings and constant exposure to equipment grime and grease, all three look like they were lathered in bleach and tie dyed with hydraulic oil.

The older Farmer leans toward navy tee-shirts, which tend to tell-tale less the abundant manure splotches and weld-burn holes. However, the spring sale had no navy shirts, but a plentiful supply of the prettier bright-aqua. He's the one in the swimming pool shade, fading along with the summer.

All the season's tee-shirts, by this time of year, have seen better days. But, when they came looking for shop rags a couple of days ago, I came up emptyhanded of suitable soft fabric.

Sorry, no rags available. We're still wearing 'em.

Back-To-School Lunches

As fall draws near and children return to school, busy parents concerned about what their kids eat are looking for easy-to-make treats that won't be lunchtime trade-ins but definite keepers.

Brown bag lunches are convenient and economical and have sustained generations of children. But packed lunches carry with them the reputation of being mundane, unappealing, and dull.

Smart choices include not only taste and convenience but also good nutrition. A lunch should include selections from five food groups: milk, cheese, and yogurt; meat, poultry, fish, and alternates; fruit; vegetable; and bread and other grain products. While it's not essential to pack a food from each group for lunch, doing so helps meet daily nutritional needs.

Keep lunch interesting by packing a variety of different foods. Make a sandwich one day, a salad another, include a hot or cold soup. Vary sandwich breads and fillings. Consider textures, colors, and flavors.

Dairy & Nutrition Council Mid East offers the following suggestions to make your lunchtime a good time for healthy eating:

Yogurt, fresh fruit, and a high fiber muffin.

Cold pasta salad with fresh vegetables (broccoli florets, cherry tomatoes, chopped green pepper, and shredded carrots) and chunks of mozzarella cheese. Add a slice or two of Italian bread.

Chef salad (any combination of greens, fresh vegetables, lean meat or poultry, and Swiss or cheddar cheese) stuffed into whole wheat pita.

Fresh fruit salad topped with plain yogurt and a dash of cinnamon. Serve with nut bread or muffin.

Mix cottage cheese with chopped vegetables or serve with fresh fruit. Add a muffin, melba toast, or a hard roll.

Start the school year right — pack a lunch with imagination and appetite appeal.

(Turn to Page B8)

ADD THE MAGIC TOUCH

Although sandwiches are the mainstays of the lunch box, the American Dairy Association suggests you select from these other categories to make that meal-away-from-home a special treat:

- Pack a munchable or two: cheese-stuffed celery, cubes of cheese on a wooden pick with pickles and olives; bunch of grapes, cherries or strawberries, stuffed prunes or dates; small bags of corn or potato chips, chocolate covered raisins, marshmallows, candied orange peel, cupcakes or cookies; any whole fruit like an apple, pear, orange, or banana.
- Make ahead and freeze: chicken, tuna, cheese and cheese spreads, shrimp or ham salads in sandwiches.
- Thermos tactics: milk, cocoa, flavored milk drinks, buttermilk or skim milk or cream soup. Squat thermos will hold baked custard, puddings, chilled fruit or berry-flavored yogurt, salads, cut-up fruits.
- Surprises: special occasion card, cartoon, stick of gum or small change for an after-school treat.
- Opt for interesting carry-alls, fresh, colorful sandwich sacks, denim tote bags, containers flat enough to fit a briefcase.

Build A Better Sandwich

Does the mention of "sandwich" conjure up visions of bologna and mustard on white bread? A flashback to school days? While the mainstay of most brown bag lunches is the sandwich, a little imagination and creativity can turn the mundane into a gourmet treat! Pick and choose from the following

The Foundation	Fillings	Add-ons
Bread/Bagel/Rolls	Lean Meat	Salad greens
Whole wheat	Ham	Spinach leaves
Multi-grain	Roast Beef	Onion slices

Christy Sanner Named Somerset Fair Queen

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — When Christy Sanner of Rockwood was named Somerset County Fair Queen last Sunday evening, it was the first time in three years that sudden rains did not send the grandstand affair into the livestock show arena. The late summer weather was perfect for the outdoor contest.

Sanner and three other young women, all looking their prettiest, competed to reign over the county fair and to represent Somerset County in the upcoming state contest.

Julie Sines, Meyersdale, was the first runner-up. The other contestants were Christian Gardner, Somerset and Sharon Platt, Berlin. Each contestant is now a high school senior.

Sanner, the daughter of Lynn and Debra Sanner, was sponsored by the Milkshakers 4-H Club. The honor roll student is an enthusiastic sports participant, member of the county dairy judging team and 4-H exchange, which is going to Utah this year.

When asked by master of ceremonies, Jim Bochy, whether the abortion issue should be a part of the political campaign, Sanner said, "Yes. Because there's only right or wrong." Personally, she is against abortion and said if a president were elected in the United States who is proabortion, it could have very serious consequences for the people of the U.S.

Lucinda Lape, 1981 Somerset Co. Fair Queen, after entertaining and speaking to the audience, placed the crown on the 1992 fair queen. She will enter her sophomore year at Eastern Mennonite College, Harrisonburg, Va., in September.

Bochy is the retired director of the Somerset Co. Cooperative Extension Service.

Judges for the contest were John Marchezak, Washington Co., Sarah Long, Blair Co., and Joy Detweiler, Bedford Co.

Marchezak, who spent some 36 years on the Washington Co. fair board has many ag honors and his business is breeding Holstein and Guernsey cattle.

Long has a 350-acre farm in Sinking Valley. She is secretary of the Blair Co. fair board and involved in dairy princess and fair queen events.

Detweiler has taught in public schools for some 22 years, getting various degrees and honors in that time.

The 1992 Somerset Co. fair queen Christy Sanner, center, is flanked by, from left, Sharon Platt, Lucinda Lape (1991 queen), Julie Sines, first runner-up, and Christian Gardner.

Coordinating plans for the contest this year were Mary Will, Berlin, and her daughter, Wendy Will, a recent Pennsylvania state fair queen from Somerset Co.

Retirement: A New Way Of Life

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — If you are planning to retire in the next few years, in the next 5-15 years, or are just beginning to consider what retirement might be like down the road, a three-part workship called "Retirement: A New Life, A Different Life" can help you to make retirement a positive and productive time. The workshop sessions will be held at the Chester County Cooperative Extension office, 235 W. Market Street, West Chester, on Tuesdays, September 8, 15 and 22 from 7:00-9:00 p.m. Registration is required by September 1. The fee is $10 per person or $12 per couple for the entire program, including reference materials and refreshments.

The workshop, developed by Penn State Faculty and presented locally by Extension Agent Fred Davis and speakers from the Cooperative Extension, offers advice on the financial aspects of retirement as well as other concerns about retiring such as Social Security, planning effectively, time management, finding the best place to live, staying active, lifestyles, and long-term health insurance considerations.

In addition to a hands-on financial analysis of your individual retirement program, the workshop includes a video in which people share their thoughts and concerns about their retirement. Investments will be the topic of the final session.

For registration or program information, contact the Chester County Cooperative Extension (215) 696-3500.

Cranberry Orange Marmalade

2 pounds raw cranberries
2 oranges, sliced very thin and seeds removed
3 cups sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 pint water

Peel the oranges and cut the skins into very thin slices. Chop the pulp into small pieces. Combine the fruits and the sliced peels. Add the sugar; mix well, and let stand overnight. Turn down heat and simmer covered for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Chop the peeled oranges and lemon; add with cranberries to the rind; simmer 10 minutes longer. Measure 6 cups of the mixture into a large saucepan; add the Sure-Jell and bring to a hard boil. Cook gently for 1 minute. Stir in the sugar and boil hard for 1 minute. Mini Seminar Teaches Dairy Promotion To Youth Leaders at the Mini Seminar include, from left: Tammy Balthaser, 1988 Pa. Alternate; Onalee Smith, 1991 Pa. Alternate; Tanya Martin, 1991 Pa. Alternate; Kristin Metzker, 1990 Pa. Dairy Princess; Angela Spickler, 1989 Pa. Alternate; and Robin Wilbur, 1991 Pa. Dairy Princess.

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — Thursday, July 30, was the date, Penn State Ag Arena was the place, and the "how to's" of dairy promotion was the topic. Sixty-five young dairy promoters and 23 adults gathered for the third annual "Mini Seminar" conducted by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. The young people came from all corners of the state-Erie County to Bucks, Washington to Wyoming and included three 4-H exchange students from Japan and one from Finland.

This one-day training session was designed to acquaint some of Pennsylvania's younger dairy enthusiants with the basics of dairy promotion. Following an introductory session in which each participant had the opportunity to introduce themselves and their chaparone, the attending Dairy Maids, Ambassadors, and Junior Dairy Representatives were divided into three groups. Each group rotated to three 50-minute workshops.

All the workshops were conducted by current or former Pennsylvania dairy royalty-young women who have "been there themselves" as local dairy promoters. This year's leaders were: reigning State Princess, Robin Wilbur, and Alternates Tanya Martin and Onalee Smith, who conducted the session on "The Basics"-Cows, Products, Industry Facts, and Nutrition. Former State Alternates Angela Spickler, 1989, and Tammy Balthaser, 1988, handled "My Image"-What to Wear, What to do, and How to do it. Kristin Metzker, 1990 Pennsylvania Princess, covered the "how to's" of imprompt speeches and interviews in "Speaking and Interviews-Fun not Fearsome".

Concluding the program was a general session for all with skits and discussion by the leaders on the "how not to's" as well as the "how to's"! A session was also held for the adults at which dairy princess coordinators, Mim Kauffman, Mary Herman, Wanda Yoder, and program director, Jan Harding, explained the Pennsylvania Diary Princess program and the importance of the more recently developed Diary Maid and Ambassador program for younger participants. This session provided time for questions and answers on local promotion efforts and an opportunity for exchange of many ideas and experiences.

A sandwich and salad luncheon including milk and ice cream from Penn State's creamery was served and each participant took home a packet on dairy industry information and a dairy T-shirt.

Kid's Korner

Kid Fun At The Elizabethtown Fair

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — For the first time ever, the Elizabethtown Fair held a petting zoo. Dwight and Sarah Algoe of Mount Joy were in charge of the zoo which included a pony, a goat, a calf and rabbits galore.

"About 452 people tour the zoo every hour," Dwight said. "The most popular attraction is the rabbits."

There were cages of many different breeds of rabbits so that visitors could compare the various colorings and markings found on the different breeds.

One of the most interesting sights for fairgoers was the opportunity to see rabbits in different stages of growth, from 10 days to 1½ years old. Visitors were not allowed to touch the rabbits that were in the cages, but they could pet those in a special area where the children could sit and play with the rabbits.

Members of the Mt. Joy 4-H Rabbit Club assisted the Algoes in watching and feeding the rabbits. The cages of the rabbits also needed to be cleaned. About 20 students are members of the club. Some of the members' parents also helped at the Petting Zoo.

In addition to the petting zoo, there were a lot of other activities for children. In one of the contests, children tried to see who could build the tallest stack of cookies. In another, children competed in a pedal-power tractor contest.

Children from ages 1 to 18 could win a soccer ball when they competed in a soccer kicking contest.

One-year-old Shawna Frey and Lucinda Renee Boyd, 6, play with the rabbits at the Children's Petting Farm at Elizabethtown Fair. Shawna is the daughter of Richard and Sandy Frey of Mount Joy. Lucinda is the daughter of Cindy and Rusty Boyd.

Dwight and Sarah Algoe of Mount Joy headed the 4-H Petting Farm, which opened at the Elizabethtown for the first year. It proved so popular that the Algoes are certain that it will remain a permanent part of the Fair. They are describing the rabbits to Steve Tangert, 11, of Lancaster.

In the Cookie Stackup competition, children of the same age try to build the highest stack of cookies within one minute.

Twelve-year-old Steve Miller serves as the official doorkeeping to the entrance of the petting zoo. He said he needs to keep a close watch to make sure the animals don't run away when the door is opened.

Eight-month-old Erin Polson, daughter of Esther Polson of Elizabethtown, found her favorite spot at the E-town Fair Petting Zoo.

94-Year-Old Remembers Fairs Of Yesterday

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Elmer Hillegass, 94, has been attending the Bedford County Fair for about 80 years.

"I can remember when the night before going to the fair was the longest night of the year," says this now retired farmer.

Elmer remembers when he used to ride to the train station near Manns Choice in a wagon pulled by a team of horses. There, he would catch an old "iron horse," for Bedford and the big fair.

"The whole procedure took about three hours," he remembers. "But, it was the most exciting day of the year."

He also remembers Heckerman's Drug Store. The local pharmacy had a monkey in the window and he and his brother used to sneak off to look at it.

Elmer continued going to the fair until he was old enough to take his girl friend along, still traveling by carriage to the train, and then into Bedford.

"I hauled her around for 10 years before I decided to marry her," he smiles. They were married for 40 years and have two daughters.

"Everything was about the same then as it is now," he smiles. "There was plenty to eat and lots of animals and displays. There weren't as many rides. But, there was a merry-go-round and a ferris wheel."

"A whole family could go to the fair for a couple of dollars," Hillegass recalls.

Hillegass has lived and farmed most of his life in Bedford County.

At 94, Elmer Hillegass wasn't about to miss the Bedford Fair. He has been a faithful attender for more than 80 years.

City Teacher Enthusiastic About Agricultural Materials

City teacher Deborah Marko said her goal is to teach students about the importance of agriculture. She is grateful to the farmers of Lancaster County and to the Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living for providing information and materials such as a compost jar and a hydroponic garden, which she will use to teach agricultural concepts to her fourth grade students.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A fourth grade classroom in inner-city Lancaster is an unlikely place to learn about farming, but if fourth grade teacher Deborah Marko has her way, her students will learn plenty about agriculture.

As Marko arranges a compost jar and a hydroponic garden, she bubbles with enthusiasm for the ideas she received from the teachers' workshop sponsored by the Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living.

"Wait until the kids see this," she said. "This compost jar makes it so easy to understand how composting works."

Marko was one of 45 Pennsylvania teachers chosen to attend the first workshop sponsored by the Foundation. Its purpose is to instruct teachers on the basic facts of agriculture and provide classroom ideas that will help students understand the impact agriculture has on the world today.

Marko heard about the workshop through Jane Eshelman, the director of the Ag in the Classroom program in Lancaster County.

"Mrs. Eshelman and her husband, a potato farmer, have taught my students and me a lot about agriculture during the six years that they have visited the classroom," Marko said.

Through visits to the farm, Marko was encouraged to grow plants in the classroom to teach her students how to identify fruits and vegetables. She taught her students to use grocery store advertisements to plan meals using only products grown in Pennsylvania.

Marko was especially delighted with the welcoming speech by Ellis Griffith, a farmer and a Dale Carnegie instructor.

"He immediately grabbed my attention because he wore bib overalls and carried a corncob pipe, Marko said. "I often dress in costumes to capture the attention of my students so I knew what he was doing. The purpose of his speech was to destroy any preconceived notions that we harbored about farmers."

Marko said that those ideas were also squelched in her classroom when Mr. and Mrs. Eshelman visited to tell the students about potato farming.

"One of my students remarked, 'They don't look like farmers.' The Eshelmans are always impeccably dressed and appear to be business people, which is just one of the roles that today's farmer has to fulfill," Marko said.

Each session at the workshop, provided handouts or materials that can be used for classroom instruction. These included a bead sprout kit, a session on hydroponics taught them how to assemble a soiless garden, a miniature compost pile is created in a glass jar so that students can watch waste return to useful form.

"In a session on milk, we made cheese and butter. Of course, we sampled the results of our efforts," Marko said.

Field trips also provided a learning source. The workshop included trips to Shaver's Creek Ecological Center for a guided discovery walk and an exhibit of conservation projects. At a mushroom facility, teachers saw how fungi grow. At the Landscape Management Research Center, teachers learned about the varieties of turf, which is one of the biggest industries in the state. Tours of the Penn State Creamery and a grocery store enabled them to see how products are marketed.

"Wednesday evening was a memorable buffet dinner at the Nittany Lion Inn, where all the items on the buffet table were agricultural products of the Keystone state. No one could dispute the fact that Pennsylvania farmers produce the best food found anywhere!" Marko said.

Now that the workshop is over, Marko said, her job is only beginning. "Passing on the knowledge of agriculture and its importance in Pennsylvania as well as the whole nation is my goal in the classroom. Thanks to the Farmers Association of Lancaster County and to the Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living, I will be better prepared to do so."

For more information on the Ag in the Classroom program or other Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living activities, call executive director Beth More at Chambersburg (717) 375-2639.

Ask The Master Food Preserver

Is it alright to use a large pot for boiling water canning if I use a rack.

Yes, if the diameter does not exceed 13 inches and its height permits adding water to at least 1 inch above the jar tops. The rack should be slotted or perforated to allow circulation.

Why did I lose so much liquid in my green beans when I pressure canned them?

Chances are instead of "hot packing" them by boiling them for 5 minutes before potting them in a jar and processing them, you "raw packed" them. Hot packing most foods is an advantage because it removes much of the oxygen, it allows you to put in a larger quantity, the color retention is better over the course of the year, they have a longer shelf life and it keeps foods from floating to top, particularly fruits like peaches. Another way to lose liquid is by rapidly cooling down the canner, which is not recommended for a number of other safety reasons.

I'm glad to hear you pressure canned them since that is the only safe canning method for low-acid vegetables.

My peaches always float to the top. What am I doing wrong?

Chances are you put them in the jars raw and the trapped oxygen makes them float. Hot packing them by bringing the syrup to a boil over the peaches will elminate that problem. Using heavy syrups may also increase the tendency for fruit to float. Overtightening the bands can contribute to floating as well.

The Master Food Preservers are trained volunteers for Penn State Cooperative Extension in Cambria County and can be reached by calling (814)472-7986.

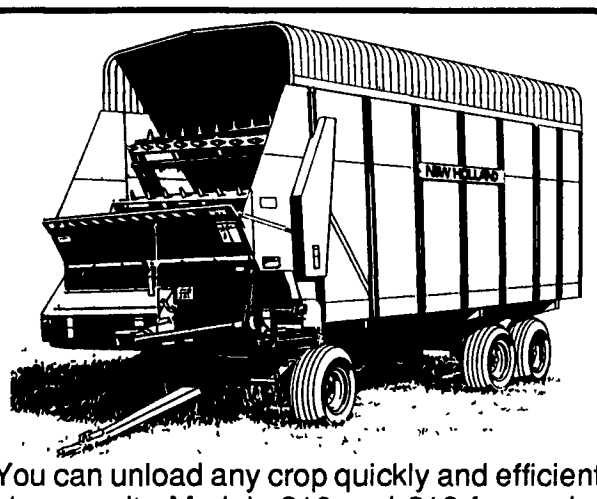
Forage Harvester

When it comes to harvesting, you can't beat the heavy-duty performance that's built into the New Holland Model 790 forage harvester. Performance starts at the cutterhead. The 19 11/16-inch wide, 12-knife cutterhead delivers a fine uniform chop that's just right for most silage feeding operations. And an electric clutch gives instant response and positive control on the reversing gearbox. The Model 790 is available with either a 540-rpm or a 1000-rpm PTO drive.

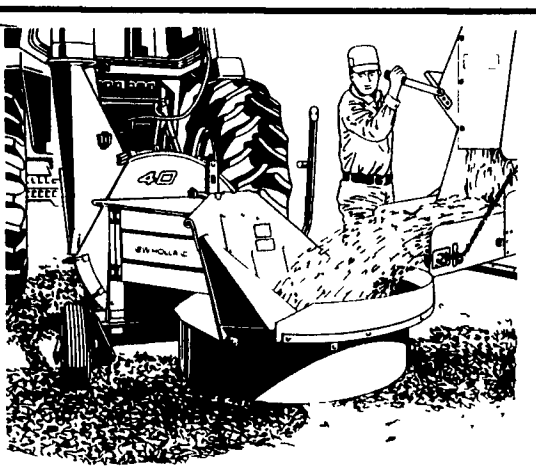
Forage Harvester

If you custom harvest as well as chop your own forage, a self-propelled harvester like the Model 1915 can help you harvest more crop at peak quality. The fuel-efficient 270-horsepower diesel engine and the 24-inch, 12-knife cutterhead give you high-capacity day-in and day-out harvesting. And the exclusive automatic knife sharpener and automatic shearbar adjuster, called Accucut™, combine to give you precision-sharpened knives and a reset shearbar, all from the comfort of the cab.



Forage Box

You can unload any crop quickly and efficiently with the new big-capacity Models 816 and 818 forage boxes from Ford New Holland. Roller chain drive provides unloading speeds of 3.0 and 7.1 feet-per-minute. And tough Duraply sides flex under heavy loads for season-after-season dependability. The "816" and "818" unload from the front and come standard with three self-aligned beaters and baked-enamel galvanized roof.



Forage Blower

Every minute you can save at the blower means more loads per day and more overall productivity. Let us demonstrate the New Holland Model 40 forage blower and we believe you'll agree you can increase your silage productivity.

The Model 40, with 20 percent greater tip speed than previous models, center fills silos over 80 feet high.

Bidders Open Hearts, Wallets During E-town Livestock Sale

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — "Open your hearts and wallets and support these kids," auctioneer Harry Bachman urged the crowd gathered for the annual livestock sale at the Elizabethtown Fair on Thursday night.

That's exactly what the bidders did during the boisterous and sometimes good-natured ribbing that permeated the sale.

"Put your calculator away. They'll tell you what you owe when you come to pay your bill," Bachman told a top bidder who slowed bidding to calculate the total cost.

Sale supporters paid up to $5.25 per pound for the champion goat, $4.20 per pound for the champion hog, $2.75 per pound for the champion market lamb, and $1.80 per pound for the champion steer.

Lyndon Reiff's grand champion market lamb was the first to be sold over the auction block. Lebanon Valley National Bank purchased the 120-pound sheep for $2.75 per pound. His sister's (Lisa's) 120-pound reserve grand champion followed with a close $2.60 per pound. Dr. Richard Albright, a local orthordonist, purchased it.

McCracken's Feed Mill paid $5.25 per pound for the 90-pound grand champion goat shown by Amanda Grube of Lititz. Walter Dunlap paid $2.25 per pound for the 80-pound reserve champion shown by Lindsey Lane, Rheems.

For $1.80 per pound, Groff's Meats of Elizabethtown purchased Peter Hoffines grand champion steer, which weighed in at 1,245. The reserve champion steer shown by David Bollinger of Manheim was purchased jointly by cattle jockeys Robert Ginder and Frank Fillippo.

Kevin Pfautz, Lititz, who showed the 246-pound grand champion hog was pleased with the $4.20 per pound that Hatfield Quality Meats paid.

An on-the-spot syndicate was formed when Al McCauley of Am Tran in Elizabethtown combined forces with Sue Brown of White Oak and Mylin Good to purchase the 246-pound reserve grand champion hog. It was shown by Sara Boyd of Ephrata and sold for $3.10 per pound.

The number of show animals sold during the auction included 53 lambs, 7 goats, 5 steers, and 132 swine.

The 3900 flex-wing... good news for today's farming.

It's time to take a new look at disk harrows. Especially the new Case International 3900 flex-wing disk harrow. It's the easiest-pulling, level-est-working disk harrow you can hook up to today's high-horsepower tractors.

Here's how the 3900 meets performance, reliability and durability challenges like nothing else in the field:

■ It offers superior gang strength from a massive welded tubular unibody frame — good for years of trouble-free operation.

■ A unique self-leveling spring-loaded hitch transfers weight between tractor and disk to maintain ground-hugging performance regardless of ridges and gullies. The 3900 stirs and mixes soil, chemicals and residue consistently — even at high operating speeds. This promotes uniform germination.

■ A new mechanical stop depth control eliminates variances common with master/slave systems. It's great for uniform incorporation.

■ Earth Metal® crimp-center blades give you sharp penetration and an easy pull that saves fuel. Plus extra durability that means fewer replacements.

Want more good news? Stop in today.

Check out the 3900. Also available with Cushioned Gangs® for rocky conditions or coil-tine mulchers for seedbed grooming.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This year I did not have a good cucumber crop. In the first place, only a few plants came up and in the second place, they wilted before bearing. So, Allen and I visited the Leola Produce Market, which is in our area. We had never been there before.

Our mission was to buy a small quanitity of assorted sizes of cucumbers as our grandchildren always expect to be given some to take home when they visit us. And, we can't disappoint them, can we?

Atfter looking over all of the skids containing boxes of tomatoes, peaches, peppers, and beans, we found a shelf with smaller amounts. We waited over an hour until the auctioneer got to these last items. Then I was lucky enough to get a grocery bag full for a small price and I canned 21 pint of bread and butter pickles and sweet spiced pickles.

The next day Allen asked me to go along to a new fishing spot that he'd heard about recently. Despite having tomatoes to can, I agreed to get up at 4 a.m. to drive to Mauch Chunk Lake in Carbon County. When we arrived the lake was shrouded with a very thick fog. So for the first two hours we could not see anything more than a few feet away from our boat. It was an eerie feeling to be thus surrounded. When the sun finally burned off the fog, we could see that the lake was ringed by a thickly wooded area with mountains in the background.

We caught a baker's dozen of small pan fish but we left the big ones there for the next fishermen. It was a hot day and by noontime we were ready to head for home after eating our lunch in the boat. A raspberry swirl ice cream cone topped off the trip.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 1

The Lancaster County Society of Farm Women held their August meeting in the Kreider's Restaurant, Manheim. President, Julia Lahn presided and welcomed members.

Devotions were in charge of Barbara Hershey. She focused her comments on "The Name Jesus" and defined it as a "Pearl of Great Prize", with a Biblical reference from Matthew 13: 45-46.

Roll call was answered by each member giving some family statistics. Twenty members and two guests were present.

The project for the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women for 1992 will be "Habitat for Humanity" and for "Brett Hershey" who has Leukemia. Members voted to contribute $50 to this project.

Fay Garman introduced the speaker, Debbie Kreider. Debbie is the manager of the Kreider Restaurant in Hershey and is also the granddaughter of Mary Kreider, who is a member of Farm Women Society No. 1. Her talk was about ice cream. She defined it as a nutritious frozen anytime dessert, "A food for the gods." She traced the history of ice cream from the time that Nero and Alexander, who with primitive methods tried to make frozen desserts, to the present time when millions of gallons are devoured yearly. Pennsylvania is the second largest producer of ice cream. Debbie also described the processes involved in producing this product.

The Lancaster Society of Farm Women No. 1 will hold their September meeting in the home of Marv Kurtz with Mollie Emenheiser as co-hostess. The program will be on flower arrangements by Marilyn F. Ebel.

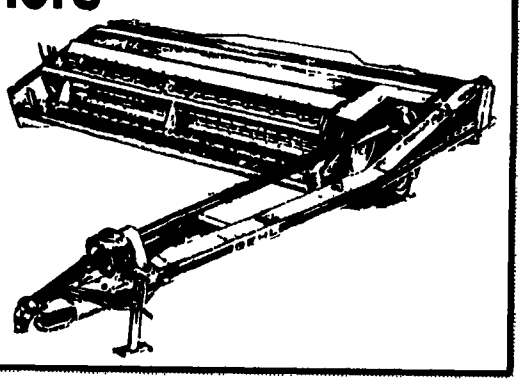
GEHL

Common Sense Mower Conditioners

Gehl mower conditioners are "common sense" machines because they're packed with sensible features. Gehl pull-type sicklebar mower conditioners are built to give you fast cutting and conditioning for quick crop dry-down.

- Full-width intermeshing conditioning rolls with intermittent ribs deliver thorough, uniform conditioning.
- Simple sickle drive with pivot-arm design provides more cutting force.
- Fewer moving parts than competitive models for worry-free performance.
- Three-point flotation support protects the cutterbar from rocks and uneven terrain.
- Two models with 7-foot and 9-foot cutting widths available.



Pack It In!

- Total Density Control (TDC®) - Lets you custom-build bales according to changing crop and moisture conditions for maximum nutrient value.
- Two models - Makes bales 3 feet, 9 inches wide and up to 5 feet in diameter, or 5 feet wide and up to 6 feet in diameter.
- Quick-wrap option - Speeds your baling operation and helps preserve hay quality.
- Constant velocity driveline - For smooth operation.
- Electric dual twine wrap - With manual or auto control.
- Low horsepower requirement - Lets you bale with a tractor as small as 40 horsepower

LIMESTONE

Rumors are flying that a company (the same one that brought us Aerogen) is promoting a vitamin-mineral premix in Pennsylvania on the basis of high nutrient content and bioavailability.

Well, that's nothing new. But this premix is reportedly special because it contains midwestern limestone, unlike many of the premixes and feeds manufactured in the Northeast.

The midwestern limestone reportedly has lower levels of impurities, especially aluminum and magnesium, which might interfere with the uptake of other important nutrients.

Does midwestern limestone really have fewer impurities? Are the levels of impurities high enough in eastern limestone to limit performance in pigs? Read on.

All Limestones Are Not Created Equal

Limestone is composed of a mineral called calcium carbonate ($CaCO_3$). This is basically the same material found in sea shells, marble, and the white deposits found in your sink if you have hard water.

The type of crystal and the amount of impurities will dictate what the final product looks like and how it can best be used.

The Association of American Feed Control Officials (AAFCO) categorizes limestone based on calcium content. Limestone sources high in calcium (38-40 percent) qualify as calcium carbonate. If the limestone contains 33-37 percent calcium, then it's called ground limestone.

Two other types of limestone are popular for agronomic use, but less practical for swine diets. One is dolomitic limestone which contains 20-23 percent calcium and at least 10 percent magnesium. The other is high magnesium limestone, and contains about 30 percent calcium and 5-6 percent magnesium.

Both calcium level and magnesium level are important aspects of limestone quality. Another concept that's just as important is bioavailability. This term characterizes how well an animal digests and absorbs nutrients.

A nutrient bioavailability of 100 percent is ideal. Research clearly shows that the higher the calcium level in the mineral source, the higher the bioavailability:

Table 1: Bioavailability of Calcium Sources

Source	Calcium Level	Bioavailability
Ground limestone	33-37%	70-90%
Marble dust	39%	98%
Oyster shell flour	38%	98%
Aragonite	39%	98%
High magnesium limestone	30%	82%
Dolomitic limestone	23%	51-73%

Impurities

Magnesium. Impurities such as heavy metals can affect the value of limestone sources, but no element has more impact on calcium availability than magnesium.

When magnesium replaces calcium in the limestone, the result is a much tighter crystal, one that is more resistant to attack from digestive acids. In high-calcium limestones, magnesium levels range from .1-1.0 percent. Incidentally, the magnesium in limestone has a low bioavailability.

Aluminum. This element, when in the right form, can limit phosphorus absorption. But the form that we find in soil and in limestone cannot be digested by the pig. So, yes, aluminum is a contaminant of limestone. But because it's in an undigestible form, it's of little consequence. In high-calcium limestones, aluminum levels range from 50-1,000 parts per million (ppm).

Iron. Another major impurity, iron, can be found at levels of 1,000-2,000 ppm in high calcium limestone. But it is only about 50 percent available. So it's also of little concern.

Northeastern Limestone

I recently contacted an individual involved in marketing the premix mentioned in the first paragraph. And he confirmed that the product uses a "unique combination of minerals because of low aluminum and magnesium in midwestern limestone." I then asked if our limestone was really that different from what is mined in the midwest. He told me that midwestern limestone generally contains about .1 percent magnesium and a similar amount of aluminum, while limestone from our area typically has 5-8 percent of both magnesium and aluminum.

Then I called four major feed companies in Pennsylvania to find out where they buy their limestone and learned that nearly all of it originates from the Bellefonte region, parts of the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia, and the York area. The limestone deposits in all of these regions contain 95-98 percent calcium carbonate, which make them high-quality deposits. After contacting the limestone suppliers I learned that they sell a variety of products or "grades" depending on calcium level, etc. The names of the grades don't necessarily conform to the terms used Table 1, so I've simply grouped them into high calcium and low calcium limestone in Table 2:

Midwestern Limestone

Having talked with the Iowa Limestone Company, and an individual in the east that's familiar with those deposits I have found that it's almost identical to ours:

One exception to this is a deposit near St. Genevieve, Mo. which contains about 99 percent calcium carbonate. That's a percent or two higher than what we have in the Northeast.

The purest calcium carbonate deposit in North America is apparently found in the Bahamas, and is called Aragonite. But if you check Table 1, you'll see that the bioavailability of Aragonite is no better than that of high calcium limestone (listed as calcium carbonate in the table).

	Calcium	Magensium	Aluminum
High calcium limestone	38-39%	.40-1.5%	1-3700 ppm
Low calcium limestone	34%	3.6%	?

Nearly all of the limestone fed to pigs (and livestock) is of the high calcium variety. But you can see that even the low calcium limestone (based on one product that I could locate) contains far less magnesium than what our premix marketer claims.

Particle Size

Particle sizes for feedgrade limestone range from 5-5,600 microns. The optimum size for swine appears to be in the 300-1,000 micron range.

What Really Matters?

Use high calcium limestone. And we have plenty of it in the Northeast.

If you're not sure what you're getting, the suppliers can provide specification sheets on all of their products. There should be a listing for calcium (or calcium carbonate) and magnesium (or magnesium carbonate).

Shoot for a calcium level of least 38 percent (equivalent to 95 percent calcium carbonate). And try to buy limestone that has no more than 1 percent magnesium. This is equivalent to 3.5 percent magnesium carbonate ($MgCO_3$) or 1.6 percent Magnesium Oxide (MgO).

What if you're buying complete feed or a vitamin mineral premix? Not to worry, the high calcium limestone is already there.

Summary

1. The most important aspect of limestone is the calcium content. Buy a product that has at least 38 percent calcium. Products with less than 38 percent calcium will have increasing amounts of magnesium, which limits the digestibility of calcium.

2. Besides magnesium, limestone contains a lot of impurities. The major elements are aluminum, and iron. The aluminum is unavailable to the pig, and the iron is only partly available, so neither of these contaminants presents any reason for concern.

3. Ideal particle size of the limestone is in the 300-1,000 micron range. The supplier can provide you with specifications on their materials.

4. The notion that a premix or any other product is nutritionally superior because it contains midwestern limestone (and not northeastern limestone), is silly.

Steers In Spotlight At Fair

NEWPORT (Perry Co.) — Under the bright lights of the show ring at the Perry County Fair, Erin Benner of Millerstown led her heavyweight market steer to the championship.

Selected by judge Bob Mikesell of McAlisterville, the 1,321-pound steer topped a market show with a record number of entries. The steer also was named FFA champion steer.

The reserve champion market steer honors went to a middleweight Limousin-Charoliar cross exhibited by Grant Finkenbinder of Duncannon. The steer also was named 4-H champion steer.

The FFA reserve champion steer was exhibited by Amy Byers of Liverpool, while the 4-H reserve champion steer was shown by Eric Finkenbinder of Duncannon.

During the beef showmanship contest, Patrick Finkenbinder and Rachel Finkenbinder, both of Duncannon, took 4-H champion and reserve champion showman respectively, while exhibiting their skills in front of the large crowd around the show ring. The top FFA best showman honors went to Scott Byers, Liverpool, while the FFA reserve champion beef showman honors went to Amy Byers.

"This year we ran the Aer-Way over half the land where we had harvested corn silage. We then spread between 4,000-5,000 gallons of liquid manure per acre and disked the seed bed to prepare for small grains. We were absolutely amazed at the difference where we used the Aer-Way and one disking. My non-Aer-Wayed ground was disked 3 to 4 times and still wasn't as good. I would recommend the Aer-Way to other farmers as it softens the ground and lets rain and manure penetrate instead of running off."
W.W Sandford III -

"Earlier this spring, I used the Aer-Way Implement and Aer-Way chain harrow on my rolling pastureland. This was done to open up the ground to get water into the sloping grasslands. At the same time I pulled the Aer-Way chain harrow to scatter the cattle manure around. Even after the dry summer we had, I noticed that the Aer-Wayed ground held the moisture better and we got thicker and taller regrowth where we ran the machine."
Dr. Rex Wilhelm D.V.M., Stuart, Iowa

"I have better pastures since I started using the Aer-Way to aerate and renovate my pastures. Using the Aer-Way has helped me get the nutrients where they are needed. I would not recommend fertilizing or liming without running the Aer-Way first."

TAKING THE GUESSWORK OUT OF SELLING TIMBER: USING THE COMPETITIVE BID ADVANTAGE

Yuriy Bihun
Forest Stewardship Associate
Penn State

If you're like most woodlot owners who decide to harvest timber, you usually sell stumpage — standing timber — or market your cut logs roadside to a log buyer, timber harvester, or sawmill owner.

Some landowners shop around, others take the first offer that comes down the pike. Since most forest landowners are not professionals at marketing timber, you may come out a loser in the deal without help from an expert.

In Pennsylvania, less than 25 percent of all timber sales on private, non-industrial woodlands involve the service of a professional forester. However, repeated studies have shown that forester-assisted timber sales net a greater return for the landowner and more than cover the cost of hiring a professional forester. Three-quarters of all sales that involve a forester require an up-front lump sum payment to the seller before harvesting begins as opposed to a pay-as-you-cut method.

Moreover, competitive bidding procedures are used on forester-assisted sales, which usually result in higher returns to the landowner. Sound forest management usually results in a more productive forest and continued income-producing potential from future growing stock. A competitive bid sale allows the landowner or forester more control over harvesting activities and the flexibility to implement practices that reflect the principles of forest stewardship.

If you're a first time timber selller, you may have some questions about where to begin. For instance, how do you go about marketing timber on the stump? Do you sell timber like you sell livestock or tobacco? What goes on when a timber sale is put up for bids?

The first step in selling timber on a competitive bid basis is to send out a request to potential buyers to submit written, sealed bids on a particular tract of timber and an invitation to a timber showing. A prospectus that includes a timber sale map, timber sale volume estimate, and a bid form should be enclosed with the invitation letter. In addition to volume estimates and calculations, the contract requirements and sale specifications should be included in the prospectus.

Although not all foresters include the same information in their prospectus, some of the items you should expect to see in a prospectus are:

Sale Specifics:
- •size of the sale (acreage and map)
- •number of stands or cutting units
- •timber and boundary marking system
- •road construction
- •seeding and mulching log landings
- •silvicultural methods (ie. clearcut vs. individual tree selection)
- •dates and time limit for carrying out the harvesting
- •protection of special features (biological and archaeological)
- •stump height requirements
- •top lopping specifications
- •slash treatment
- •stream crossings details

Volume Calculations:
- •sawtimber and pulpwood volumes (by species, stand or cutting unit)
- •number of trees
- •average volume (per acre or per tree)
- •log scale
- •site index

Even if each tree has been tallied, volumes are not guaranteed and the bidder makes his or her own estimate of the merchantable volume. Generally, volume adjustments are not made, but this depends on the individual sale.

Contract Execution:
- •contract
- •Certificate of Worker's Compensation
- •penalties for contract violations
- •general liability insurance
- •payment schedule

An acceptable performance and completion bond of 5-10 percent is usually required within 30 days of awarding the contract.

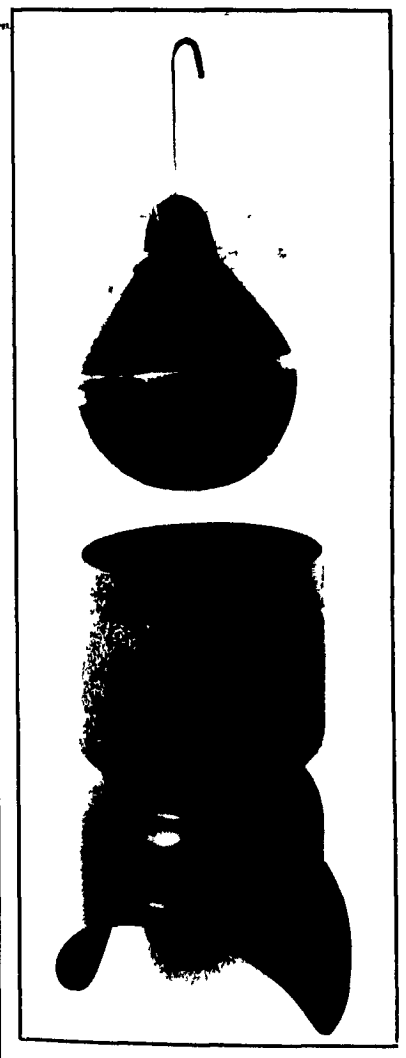
Recently, I had the chance to follow a timber sale and observe one small step in the entire process of marketing timber — the timber showing. On this particular sale, the forester mailed 80 invitations and about a dozen people showed up for the tour of the sale area. An assortment of loggers, industrial foresters, timber buyers, and sawmill owners posted for the showing. After a brief introduction, the forester in charge of the sale read over the prospectus, discussed some of the specifics of the sale and answered questions.

Interested bidders drove out to the proposed sale location where the forester discussed landing location, access, gravel for roadbuilding, culverts, and other erosion and sedimentation concerns. The forester then took the group into the woods and discussed the nuts and bolts of the sale: timber sale and property boundaries, cutting requirements, buffer strips to protect stream channels, location of main haul road and major skid trails. In some cases, the forester has the main skid trail flagged before the sale, other times the logger and forester work out the details once the contract is awarded. On this particular sale, one-tenth of the trees marked for removal had been scaled as check-trees and their volume was specified on an attached check tree sheet. Loggers were encouraged to estimate their volumes and compare them to the volumes determined by the forester.

After a tour of the proposed sale, the group returned to a roadside location for questions and last minute instructions for submitting the bids. The deadline for sealed bids with a 10 percent deposit was set for 10 business days from the showing. Of the dozen potential buyers that attended the timber showing, five submitted bids before the deadline. Two additional bids came in late and were not accepted. The bids were opened on the deadline date and, in this case, the highest bid came from a very reputable logging operator who won the sale. In most cases, the forester is not required to accept the highest bid and weighs a variety of factors before awarding the sale including, the reputation of the timber harvester and his or her ability to meet the contract specifications.

In this particular sale, the winning bid was $62,300. The next highest bid was $42,000 — a difference of more than $20,000! Most consulting foresters charge 15 percent of the sale price — in this sale, about $9,345. Without the competitive bid process, the landowner might have sold his timber for $42,000 or less — would you spend $9,345 to make $20,300? If you are considering selling timber, it is in your best interest to take advantage of the competitive bid process and use the services of a professionnal forester to assure wise forest stewardship of your natural resources.

PULL PLUG DRAINS LEAKING?
TRI-COUNTY HAS THE SOLUTION!



APOLLO BALL

This convenient plug for hog manure drains makes a non-leaking seal on the clean-out drain in pull-plug manure systems. It is a major improvement over leaky, concrete plugs.

Sold as a plug and pipe adapter set, the Apollo Ball is a thick, industrial-grade rubber ball that fits into a specially made PVC socket. The ball is filled with sand, which gives it weight but leaves it pliable for a very reliable seal. Molded into its top is a sturdy ring, and attached to this ring is a stainless steel rod with a loop on the end. To open the drain for pen cleaning, you can easily use a simple long-handled hook to catch this loop and lift the ball from its socket.

The socket into which the Apollo Ball Plug seals can be installed on any 8" PVC drain pipe. And in new construction of hog barns, it can be easily included in poured concrete flooring.

Also can be adapted to 6" PVC drains.

Farm Show Touch Screens To Point The Way

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Purpose Media, a Harrisburg-based communications company, has launched a concerted campaign to introduce interactive multimedia to the central Pennsylvania business community.

Interactive multimedia is the combination of state-of-the-art computers and touch screen technology.

According to Purpose Media's President Carlton Shank, "interactive multimedia is the essence of visual communications." Using advanced computers, Purpose Media's interactive presentations combine all the elements of digital audio, live video, text, graphic and animation.

Shank points our, "Touching our screens introduces customers to an adventure. Furthermore, the viewer controls the pace and content flow of the presentation, which maintains interest and memory retention."

Shank and Purpose Media Vice President Lynn Burkholder have extensive experience in graphic design, photography, and trade show marketing.

Uses of interactive multimedia are practically unlimited. Businesses, government agencies, and nonprofit organizations who currently advertise in particular locations or at specific events find the concept exciting.

Shank describes his company's "experiment" with interactive multimedia at the Farm Show last year as highly successful. "We set up a screen offering directions in a high traffic area and people utilized it nonstop. At the 1993 Farm Show, many more screens will be in operation at numerous locations."

Advertisers appreciate interactive multimedia because customers concentrate solely on their message, interact with it, and respond. The number of responses are counted so that advertisers can measure the effectiveness of a particular message. A printer attached to the touch screen can print a coupon immediately if the user desires a more concrete response.

Purpose Media was founded in 1982 by Shank, a Messiah College graduate, as a special event and commercial photography company. It has grown steadily evolving into a broad-based communications firm specializing in trade show exhibits and interactive multimedia services.

Burkholder directs operations at the firm's Morgantown office. Burkholder was founder of First Impressions, a graphics and photographic design firm that merged with Purpose Media in December 1992.

Patz Introduces Silo Unloader

The 98C's four impeller blades adjust for close tolerance and efficient blowing. Stainless steel blowers are available, too.

The 98C provides fully automated unloading because it is self-propelled on the silage surface without cable support. There's non winch watching.

For owners of Patz 61, 66, 98, 98A, and 98B unloaders, the bigger blower can be adapted to these machines, also.

For more information, contact a Patz dealer or Patz Sales, Inc., P.O. Box 7, Pound, Wisconsin 54161-0007, (414)897-2251.

Telmark Names Managers, Honors Salesman

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Telmark Inc. recently named area territory managers and honored a sales representative for outstanding service.

Irene G. Benner has been promoted to territory manager of Telmark Inc. for north central Pennsylvania.

Benner, a Pennsylvania native, is a dairy science graduate of Virginia Tech who was raised on her family's Pennsylvania dairy farm (Santee-Acres) in Perry County.

Benner received the honor of being named a National Distinguished Junior Holstein member by the National Holstein Association in 1988. She also captured many honors while exhibiting her Santee-Acres bred dairy cattle.

While attending Virginia Tech, Benner was on the Virginia Tech Dairy Judging Team that placed 1st at the All-American contest. She was also an active member of the nationally recognized Virginia Tech Dairy Club, holding several offices and chairmanships.

Benner still remains active in Pennsylvania's dairy industry. She owns 55 registered Holsteins and offers financing for dairy buildings and equipment through Telmark Inc. lease financing.

To contact Benner for information about lease financing, call (717) 675-2025.

Fredrick A. Dixon has also be promoted to territory manager of Telmark Inc. for northwestern Pennsylvania and northeastern Ohio.

Dixon, a Pennsylvania native from Blair County, is an ag business management graduate of Penn State with extensive experience in the beef industry.

Managing a cow/calf operation with his dad, they sold feeder steers in the fall and raised heifers in each feed lot. This procedure led the Dixon partnership to investigate and then invest in an "intensive grazing program" that involved sectioning a 100-acre parcel with high tensile fence. The results are an increased carrying capacity and an increased weaning weight.

Dixon also has experience in showing pigs and in public speaking. He was first in the state for FFA public speaking and has spoken at NAMA (National Agri-Marketing Association) events on ag issues.

Dixon still remains interested in Pennsylvania's livestock industry and agribusinesses and now offers lease financing through Telmark Inc. The tax advantages of leasing, plus the payment schedules that match cash flow (instead of standard monthly payments), make leasing very popular with farmers.

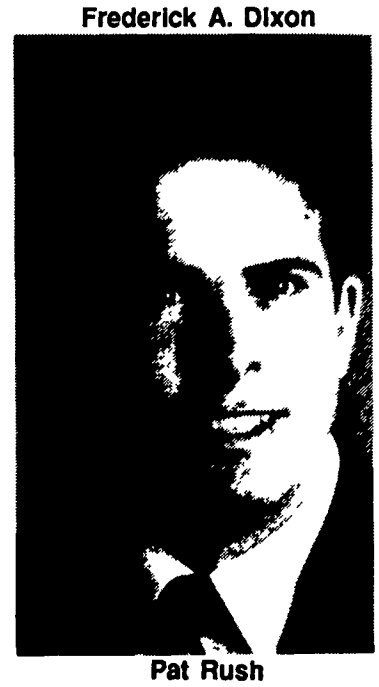
Andrew L. McLean



Pat Rush

Rush is an ag economics graduate from West Virginia University (WVU) who was raised on a southwestern Pennsylvania (Washington Co.) dairy farm. Involved heavily in agriculture all his life, he maintains a working partnership of a 80-cow, 400-acre dairy, poultry and crop farm with his brother.

At WVU, Rush travelled throughput West Virginia to study the agribusinesses of the state. He was a member of the WVU dairy judging team and was on the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Dairy Bowl Team when it won the national championship. Rush is currently a P.R. Committeeman for Atlantic Breeders Co-op in southwestern Pennsylvania.

Rush is now active in West Virginia and Pennsylvania agribusinesses by financing vehicles, buildings, and equipment through Telmark's lease financing programs.

Andrew L. McLean, an Easton, Md., resident, was recently honored for being in the top 20 percent of a select group of Telmark Inc. salespeople that surpassed 110 percent of their annual sales goal. McLean is the only person in Telmark's 19-state sales force to receive this honor and be selected to the President's Club of Telmark Inc. for four years in a row.

McLean was also honored by being chosen for the Region Management Award the second year in a row. This award is based on communication, teamwork, diversity, and profitability, and is particularly meaningful because it was created and presented to McLean by his peers.

McLean, who was raised on a Maryland dairy farm, is an ag economics graduate of Virginia Polytechnical Institute. His Telmark district covers central and southern Delaware and eastern Maryland, where he finds that agribusinessmen in production agriculture and poultry appreciate the tax advantages of leasing as a supplemental form of financing.

McLean can be reached at (410) 827-5052 for information about lease financing.

Powder Approved For Swine Treatment

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Hog producers now have a new weapon in the fight against swine bacterial pneumonia — Naxcel[R] Sterile Powder.

A cephalosporin antibiotic, Naxcel has been cleared by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for use in swine. Previously, Naxcel was cleared for treating respiratory disease in beef and dairy cattle.

"Respiratory disease, of which bacterial pneumonia is a part, possibly is the most important cause of economic loss to the swine industry worldwide," said James W. VanBuren, DVM, technical services consultant for The Upjohn Company. "It costs producers an estimated $1.5 billion annually in death losses alone. When that loss is combined weight loss, reduced performance, and the cost of medicine, the total economic loss to hog producers may exceed $2 billion a year."

Naxcel has been proven a safe, effective treatment for swine bacterial pneumonia caused by Actinobacillus pleuropneumoniae, Salmonella choleraesuis, Pasteurella multocida, and Streptococcus suis type 2.

"Left untreated, these bacterial agents can rapidly cause acute respiratory pneumonia in hogs that often results in high mortality," said VanBuren. Naxcel also may be used to control the spread of respiratory infection to susceptible swine that come in contact with acutely ill animals.

"In an 11-location field trial involving 1,762 feeder pigs, Naxcel administered for three days significantly reduced mortality rates, lung lesion scores, and improved weight gains compared to placebo-treated control pigs," said VanBuren.

Naxcel is sold through veterinarians.

Cultivator Sizes For Lower H.P. Tractors

GOODFIELD, Ill. — DMI, Inc., manufacturer of conservation yield-till tools, recently introduced seven new sizes for their DMI Tiger-Mate field cultivators to fit lower horsepower tractors.

These new smaller-sizes come in the following working widths: 11-1/2 feet, 12-1/2 feet, 13-1/2 feet, and 14-1/2 feet nonfold models, and 16-1/2 feet, 17-1/2 feet, and 18-1/2 feet singlefold models.

According to Larry VanEtten, DMI product manager, "These Tiger-Mates, like their big brothers, are the most effective residue-handling field cultivators for the '90's."

DMI Tiger-Mates have unequaled features and benefits that easily handle all residue created by any conservation tillage practice, according to Van Etten. These features and benefits include true 6 inch shank spacing (none closer than 24 inch) that provides uniform tillage, best chemical incorporation, and a level finish job; A 5-bar frame with 30-inch rank spacings for nonstop residue flow-through; more stability and even tracking with split-the-middle-sweeps (SMS) where the first three rows of sweeps take a full cut while the fourth and fifth rows take out the middles; spring mounting assemblies with 120-pound trip force and 14-inch trip height (pressure decreases as trip height increases); and a self-leveling hitch for uniform operation fore and aft.

Optional equipment includes a 3-bar coil tine harrow that fits all sizes or a 5-bar spike tooth harrow for the 11-1/2 to 14-1/2 sizes only.

"In addition to their size and feature benefits," said VanEtten, "these new Tiger-Mates are priced right, along with the larger models that have been price-reduced up to five percent for the 1992-1993 season."

For further information, contact DMI, Inc., P.O. Box 65, Goodfield, IL 61742-0065, (309) 965-2233.

Drill/Planter Hitch Uses Drills 10-20 Feet Wide

ALVA, Okla. — Baker Manufacturing has introduced a new drill/planter hitch, the Baker 2250.

The hitch can be used with 10 feet or 15 feet John Deere 750 drills, or a 6- or 8-row planter setup. The 2250 drill/planter hitch can also be used with nearly any drill from 10 feet to 20 feet wide for a 40-foot working width.

CHANGE OR NO CHANGE?

Milton E. Madison
Agricultural Economist

Within the past three years I have taken advantage of many opportunities to talk and write about the changes taking place in Pennsylvania's poultry industry.

As my office neighbor, Alvi Voigt, cleans out the office he has worked in for more than 30 years, he occasionally brings me poultry items that had caught his eye and were saved for future reference.

Often he prefaces these deliveries with, "Are the poultry producers concerned about . . . these days?"

More often than not, the blank is filled by some current topic I am working on or have yet to find time for.

An item from 1975 was, "The future of the Pennsylvania poultry industry," by Kermit Birth. My contribution under this title came in 1987. The problems facing egg producers in 1975 were listed as manure disposal, market power, shell damage, brand identity, disease control, pollution control, labor management, environmental problems, urbanization, and legislation.

Do any of these topics sound familiar? Has the poultry industry changed much over the last 17 years?

A Poultry Sales and Service notice from 1963 also had familiar topics listed: Farmer Behavior, Friendly Persuasion, Housing and Equipment, Farm Credit, Egg Quality, Nutritional Diseases, and Market Competition from the EEC. The 1992 conference covered topics on communication, housing and equipment, poultry diseases, legislation, and nutrient management, many of the same topics listed in 1963 and 1975. No matter how much things change, many aspects stay the same.

It appears, though, that at least one thing may have changed in egg production. The 1962 Penn State Poultry Management Record Analysis publication lists the percent of total egg production cost made up by:

	1962	1992
Feed	48%	56%
Bird	23%	22%
Labor	16%	11%
Other	13%	11%

Modern production buildings and additional production equipment mean less labor is being used in egg production, thus costs for labor make up a smaller part of the total (11 percent now, 16 percent then). Denser housing systems and improved genetics allow more production per square foot which allows more expensive housing and equipment to be spread over more egg production and actually decrease the importance of other costs, which include housing and equipment (11 percent now, 13 percent then). The bird's contribution to total cost is almost the same as in the past (22 percent now, 23 percent then).

Feed costs appear to be another matter. They now make up 56 percent of total egg production costs versus 48 percent in 1962. Could it be that progress has not been made as rapidly within the feed industry as in other aspects of egg production? Or, could it be that feed marketers, who are also often contractors, are building more profit into feed than other parts of the egg industry?

I do not have the answer but thought the comparisons raised some interesting questions. Perhaps you can answer the question.

Tax Preparation Workshop In Lancaster

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The rules and procedures that govern income tax filing will again reflect substantial change in 1993. Penn State will provide information about these changes at an Income Tax Preparation Workshop to be offered in Lancaster on October 5-6 at the Farm and Home Center.

The 1992 workshop has been planned to provide the best coverage possible of developments in tax law and tax filing procedure. Topics to be discussed during the first day of the workshop include recent tax law changes, tax credits, the basics of inheritance and gift tax, depreciation and dispositions, and exchanges of business property. The second day of the workshop will be devoted to tax aspects of rental property, taxation of "S" Corporations, net operation glosses, and various other topics.

Instructors for the workshop include Penn State faculty and tax accountants in private practice. The program offers 12 continuing professional education (CPE) credits for those who need these credits to maintain their professional accreditation.

Preregistration for the program is recommended, although not required. The registration fee is $110 and includes meals, refreshments, and workshop reference materials. A $20 discount is available for those who register prior to September 18.

Registration forms and more information are available at your local extension office.

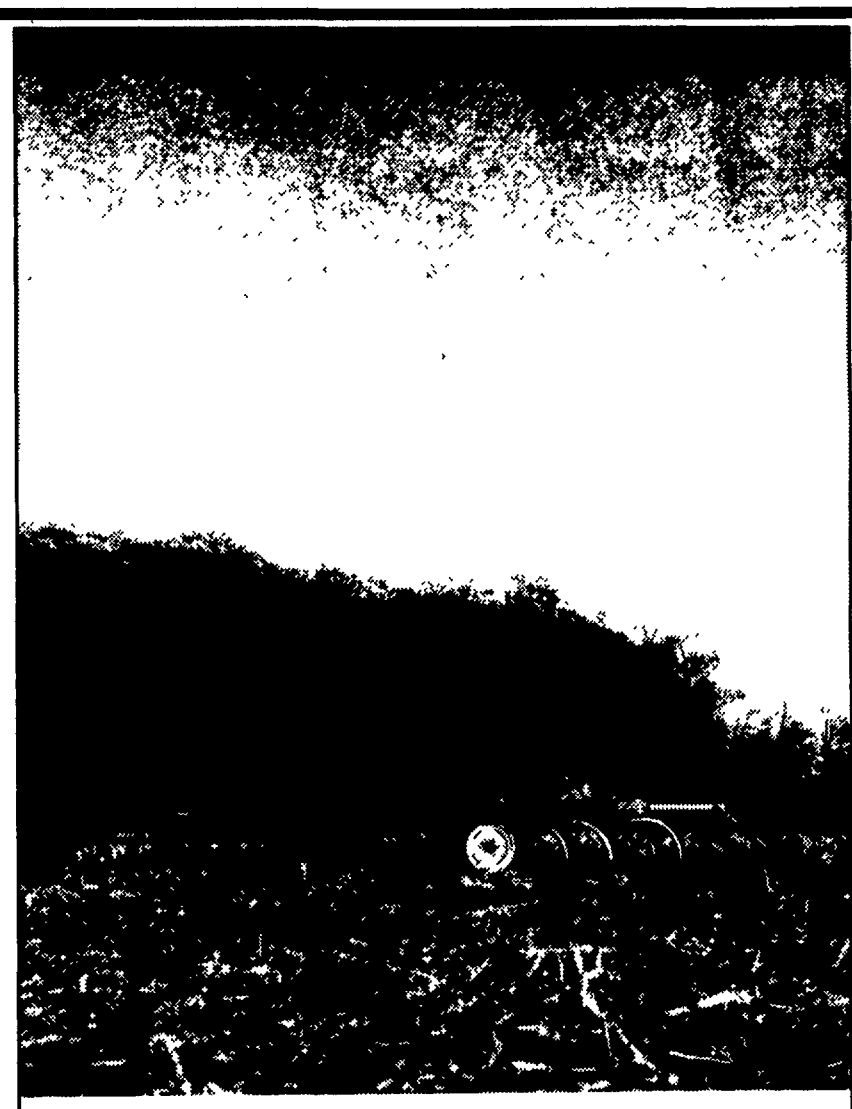
Lincoln Supply & Equip. Co.



Buries a little residue. Or a lot.

The new White 445 Chisel Plow makes complying with residue guidelines and requirements easy. Options like rippled coulters and chisel points set at 15" spacing leave lots of residue. Concave coulters and twisted shovels set at 12" spacing leave less residue. And these are just a few of the combinations available.

Our deep-till shank option rips hardpan by tilling 4" to 6" deeper than chisel shanks. This reduces compaction problems. And our leveling bar option provides a smoother surface for your next pass.

With nine models ranging from 7' to 23' working width, there's a model with the options to match your residue management plans.

Pest Control On Horizon In Greenhouses

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Biological pest control: What is it? Does it work? Is it a commercially viable alternative to pesticides?

These are some of the questions growers are asking as they contemplate the voluntary withdrawl of some key pesticides from the market by pesticide manufacturers.

Biological pest control takes advantage of the adversarial relationship of natural enemies to control crop pest problems. In other words, the good bugs wipe out the bad bugs!

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture funded a three-year research study of biological pest control in several greenhouses in the state that are producing tomatoes and poinsettias. The study, in its final year, is being carried out by Penn State University Extension personnel and is showing some promising results.

For example, one grower has not applied any pesticides to his tomato crop over seven months, controls pests with beneficial insects, pollinates the crop with honeybees and bumblebees, produces high quality tomatoes, and sells the crop as "pesticide-free" at premium prices to chain stores in Boston and at farmer's markets in Washington, D.C. The grower's employees enjoy working in a pesticide-free environment and enthusiastically support biocontrol.

Growers participating in the project are very pleased with the level of control they have obtained. Pesticide bills have been reduced or eliminated and been replaced with beneficial insects and scouting.

Biocontrol costs are similar to pesticide application costs. Other advantages include safer working environment with no concern for reentry times and the production of a high quality product.

What is the future of biocontrol in Pennsylvania?

Some interest has been expressed in establishing a greenhouse-oriented Crop Management Association (CMA) to aid growers in establishing a biocontrol based pest control system. If you are interested in this concept, contact Jan Pruss, director of the Pennsylvania Crop Management Association in State College, at (814) 863-1020.

4-H, FFA Lamb, Goat Show Held

NEWPORT (Perry Co.) — Tony Trout, Newport, captured the FFA grand champion market lamb honors with his 110-pound Suffolk lamb as it bested 33 other lambs in competition.

Trout and the other 4-H and FFA market lamb exhibitors showed their project animals in front of a large crowd gathered around the ring to watch the show.

Dick Kezumchek, shepherd of the Penn State Unniversity sheep flock, judged the show. Kezumchek selected another project lamb, a Hampshire cross belonging to Amy Byers of Liverpool, for reserve FFA champion.

Two 4-H members from Millerstown swept the 4-H sheep showmanship contest. Heather Benner captured the champion showmanship honors, while Krista Byers took reserve showmanship honors. Krista also received reserve showmanship honors in the FFA showmanship competition, while Amy Byers, Liverpool, received top FFA sheep showmanship honors.

The breeding sheep show saw Heather Benner take 4-H champion ewe, FFA champion ewe, and FFA reserve champion ewe. Becky Sue Horting Newport, won reserve 4-H champion ewe.

During the market goat show, Daniel Eicher, Duncannon, captured top 4-H showmanship honors and Laura Turnbaugh, Newport took reserve champion 4-H market goat showman. Jim Kitner, Shermansdale and Christina Wright, Newport took champion and reserve champion FFA showman, respectively.

Holly Jo McLaren, Shermansdale, won the grand champion 4-H market goat competition for her 76-pound Nubian market goat. Judge Robert Allen, Newville, placed the classes.

Christina Wright and Jim Kitner took champion and reserve champion FFA market goats honors, respectively.

President To Support Ethanol

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In a recent letter, U.S. Feed Grains Council Chairman Charles I. Ottem urged President Bush to take action in favor of including ethanol in the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA's) proposed regulations on reformulated gasoline.

"I would like to point out to you that a favorable decision on ethanol could also have a significant impact on the prospects for U.S. exports of grain," Ottem wrote.

Ethanol programs in countries such as Korea, Japan, Taiwan, and the European Community could create major new markets for grain, Ottem said. In Japan alone, a 10 percent ethanol blend would mean a demand for an additional 600 million bushels of corn, generating about $2 billion in added export income for the U.S.

These countries watch the United States, Ottem said. "If you should make a decision against permitting inclusion of ethanol in reformulated gasoline, it is highly unlikely that other countries will develop ethanol industries.

"In the interest of cleaner air, U.S. farmers and agribusinesses and export growth, the U.S. Feed Grains Council asks you to make the right choice on ethanol," the letter concluded.

Companies Collaborate On Seed Coating

DALLAS, Texas — Gustafson, Inc. has announced a cooperative effort with Landec Corporation, Menlo Park, Calif., to evaluate and exchange data related to a potential breakthrough seed coating.

The coating, which delays germination of planted seed until a preset soil temperature has been reached, utilizes a new class of temperature-activated polymers invented by Landec, called Intelimers®. Landec was recently awarded a Phase II Small Business Innovation Research grant by the USDA for further research into Intelimers.

The coating would allow growers to plant in much cooler soils than is currently practical. Intelimers form a barrier that prevents the seed from imbibing water, which begins the germination process, until a preset soil temperature has been reached.

When the proper soil temperature is reached, the Intelimer coating breaks down, allowing the seed to take in water and begin germination. The preselected temperature can be set to meet the ideal soil temperature for any given crop, for optimum germination and plant uniformity.

Under today's farming practices, growers try to plant as early as possible, which normally increases a crop's yield potential.

Early planting, however, has its drawbacks. It often results in "chilling" injury, which occurs when the seed germinates and imbibes water in cool soil. When this occurs, the seed can be damaged, and sometimes killed, resulting in lower crop yields and, if replanting is required, higher production costs.

"Intelimers can help prevent these problems associated with early planting by activating on a preset soil temperature," said Gustafson President W.J. Donwen.

Donwen said the cooperation between Gustafson and Landec could have a major impact on agriculture worldwide.

"Intelimers hold the potential to give growers flexibility in planting dates. If Intelimers are proven successful, earlier planting dates should improve yield potential and reduce replanting expenses. The benefit to the grower will be increased production, higher crop quality, and less risk in additional crop costs," Donwen said.

Other potential advantages from the use of Landec's Intelimers include time-staggered germination to accommodate hybrid pollination, increased stand uniformity, and earlier harvest, which could save production currently lost to poor weather conditions in the fall.

Hershey Visits Shredding Operation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Representative Arthur D. Hershey (R-13th) visited the farm of Reuben Stoltzfus in Honey Brook recently.

The purpose of the visit was to see Stoltzfus's newspaper shredding operation. The old newspaper is being shredded for animal bedding. Animal bedding is one of the few bright spots in the saturated market for collected newspaper.

Stoltzfus's shredding operation is running five and a half days a week. The paper coming into the Stoltzfus farm comes from recycling centers in Chester County.

About two truckloads of old newspaper arrive at the farm each day — almost 30 tons of paper. The paper is then shredded and baled in plastic bags for sale to farmers as animal bedding. Between 3,000 and 4,000 bales a week are made at the Stoltzfus farm.

Shredded newspaper has several advantages over straw for animal bedding. The paper is often in greater supply and costs less than straw — a bale of shredded newspaper costs about one-half the price of a bale of straw. Shredded newspaper is also free from weed seeds and degrades rapidly in the soil.

Representative Hershey is a member of the Joint Legislative Air and Water Pollution Control and Conservation Committee, and he was accompanied on the tour by several of the Committee staff members. The Committee does research on solid waste and recycling issues for the Pennsylvania General Assembly.

Representative Hershey said that "many of the recycling programs in Pennsylvania are collecting newspapers but finding a market for the newspapers is a challenge.

"So I am encouraged by the work that Reuben Stoltzfus is doing because the use of old newspapers by the agricultural community could help reduce some of the oversupply."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

Moisture Content Crucial In Silage

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — A few weeks before harvesting corn that will be used for silage, growers should start monitoring its moisture content, recommends a Penn State corn management specialist.

"Moisture content at harvest time is one of the most important factors influencing corn silage quality," said Dr. Greg Roth, assistant professor of corn management in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

When corn silage is too dry, it creates excessive air space in silos and encourages mold to grow. When it's too wet, it leaches nutrients, sours, and becomes unpalatable for livestock.

"As harvest time nears, corn plants begin losing moisture by about one-half of one percent each day," said Roth. "By checking the moisture content every few days, you can estimate the ideal time to harvest."

Growers can check moisture content by chopping up a sample corn plant and drying it in a forage moisture tester or microwave oven. Information about obtaining and using a forage moisture tester is available at Penn State Cooperative Extension offices.

When using a microwave oven to check moisture, weigh a portion of the chopped plant, then place it in the microwave with a glass of water. Heat the corn at the high setting for two-minute intervals until the corn feels completely dry. "By weighing the dried sample, you can tell how much of it was water," said Roth.

The difference between the two weights can be converted into a percentage. "Recommended percentages vary depending on the type of storage," said Roth. "For upright silos, 63 to 68 percent is recommended. For horizontal silos, 65 to 70 percent is recommended, and 55 to 60 percent is recommended for limited-oxygen silos."

Moisture content also can be estimated by examining corn kernels. Kernels have a milk line, a separation between the hardened starch at the crown and the milky portion near the base. As corn matures, more of the kernel hardens, and the milk line descends toward the base.

"For bunker or upright silos, corn should be harvested when the milk line is about one-third of the way from the crown to the base," said Roth. "When the milk line is midway, the plant's moisture content is ideal for storage in air-tight silos."

When the milk line reaches the kernel's base, a black layer forms there, and the digestibility of the stover is reduced. "Corn at this stage should be harvested without delay," said Roth. "It still can be ensiled, but the risk of abnormal fermentation is increased."

Weather can affect the rate of corn's moisture loss. "After an extremely dry growing season, moisture content may be 5 to 10 percent lower at any given stage of maturity, and corn may be ready for harvest a lot sooner," said Roth. "Excessive rainfall may slow down moisture loss and delay harvesting."

Corn was late developing this year due to the cold spring. Because of this, farmers in some areas may need to delay harvest or harvest after frost. "Frosted corn tends to have too much moisture," said Roth. "If this is the case, allow the corn to dry out as much as possible before harvesting.

In all cases, use the condition of the crop, not the calendar, as your guide."

Gibble Becomes Information Systems Manager

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — White Oak Mills, a regional supplier of swine, beef, and dairy feeds, is pleased to announce the promotion of Rich Gibble to manager of information systems for the newly created data processing department.

Rich Gibble

Designing and maintaining computer software, Gibble has been a vital part of the company's success for the past seven years.

"We advanced from a fairly small PC system to a faster, more efficient IBM system with more capacity," said Gibble.

Using an AS 400 model (E-10), he has developed more than 900 programs, including software for accounts receivable, accounts payable, general ledger, invoicing, and inventory.

A 1984 graduate of Manheim Central High School, Gibble completed an advanced level programming class at Harrisburg Area Community College (HACC). Not satisfied with the college atmosphere, he decided to pursue his computer interest at home. Using a variety of textbooks from college bookstores and mail orders, Gibble became a self-taught computer expert.

"I think it's easier to learn on your own," he said. "If you learn it as you need it, then you'll retain it."

As White Oak continues to expand, the data processing department will play a key role in the progress of the company.

In his new position, Gibble will work with the computer system to develop the most efficient methods of manipulating data. Responsible for all computers within the company, he will also solve any software problems encountered.

"Every day there's a new problem/new experience," said Gibble, a resident of Elizabethtown. "I like the challenge that White Oak offers."

Project Sets Surface Water Tour

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission is conducting a research project to monitor ground water and surface water on the Paul Clugston farm near Halifax.

A wetland has been constructed to reduce the nonpoint source pollutants from the farm. One of the project's goals is to determine if a constructed wetland is an effective and economical means of limiting the flow of nutrients into the basin's streams and rivers.

A field tour of the monitoring facility is being offered by the Commission on September 22, beginning with a luncheon at noon. Cost of the luncheon is $5.50. Short discussions of the project and preliminary results of the monitoring study will be provided immediately after the luncheon to be followed by a field tour of the monitoring site.

4-H Livestock Sale Big Success

RONALD CLARK
Susquehanna Co. Correspondent

HARFORD (Susquehanna Co.) — The 1992 Susquehanna County Livestock Sale was bigger and better than ever, with the premier buyer, Wyalusing Sales, purchasing 22 animals out of a total of 76.

The highest price per pound was $6.30, paid by Peoples National Bank for Nick Hawley's grand champion market hog. The reserve grand champion brought $3.90 per pound for owner Ronnie Sands. It was bought by the County Bank of Montrose.

The average weight of the 43 hogs consigned was 213 pounds. The average price per pound was $1.31. Several hogs brought in excess of $250, ranging downward from the $6.30 price for the grand champion to a low of 80¢ per pound.

The grand champion steer was a 1,225-pound Aberdeen Angus, consigned by owner Heidi Stevens. This animal was acquired by the de Naples Auto Parts Company and commanded $1.95 per pound. The reserve grand champion market steer was sold to Bingham's Restaurant for $1.55 per pound. This was the 4-H project of Scott Mitchell.

The average weight of the 18 steers consigned was 1,145 pounds. These brought an average of 99¢ per pound, with a range from $1.95 to a low of 75¢.

Fifteen market lambs were consigned by the 4-H Young People. The grand champion, owned by Dana Harvatine, was sold to Wyalusing Livestock for $4 per pound. Honor Brand Feeds was the successful bidder for the reserve grand champion. At 108 pounds, it brought $3.50 for its owner, David Harvatine.

Soybean Farmers Urge Action

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association called on U.S. Trade Ambassador Carla Hills to proceed immediately to implement retaliatory action against the European Community (EC) in a long-standing dispute over GATT-illegal EC oilseed subsidies.

The subsidies have twice been ruled in violation of GATT agreements that allow soybeans duty-free access to the EC market.

The Soybean Association's recommendations came after the deadline had passed for negotiations required under GATT regulations. No satisfactory agreement was reached in the negotiation process.

"We do not make this recommendation lightly," said ASA President Steve Yoder, in a letter to Hills that was signed jointly by the American Soybean Association and several other oilseed organizations. "Unfortunately, EC unwillingness to make substantive reforms in its internal oilseed subsidy regime has left our industries no other options."

Yoder noted that the U.S. has worked for nearly five years to achieve a satisfactory resolution of a 301 oilseeds case filed in 1987 by the U.S. government with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

"The lack of progress has now undermined confidence in the GATT enforcement system and adds more skepticism about the benefits of a new GATT agreement," he said.

Yoder also warned that soybean farmers may be forced to actively oppose any effort to conclude a new GATT agreement based on the Dunkel draft text.

"The Dunkel draft text on agriculture being considered as the basis for agreement in the Uruguay Round would legitimize and institutionalize the EC's current oilseed regime," said Yoder, adding that the decision to resolve the oilseed dispute and allow conclusion of successful GATT agreement rests entirely with the EC.

Now Is The Time To Make Sauerkraut

The month of September usually provides us with ideal temperatures and humidity for fermenting cabbage into sauerkraut.

Sauerkraut with its sharp flavor adds a pleasing change of pace to winter meals. And it is truly a convenience food — ready to serve cold in salads or appetizers or to heat in a few minutes with frankfurters for a delicious main dish.

Good cooks like to serve sauerkraut cold with a dash of celery or caraway seeds, a few chunks of chilled, drained, canned pineapple or a little pineapple juice added, for an appetizer. They know that the sharpness of its flavor, when hot, depends on how long it has been cooked. For the most tang and greatest cripsness, they only heat it. They cook it longer for a milder flavor and softer texture.

Always use pure granulated canning salt to make sauerkraut, and be sure to measure it accurately. The cabbage will not ferment properly if you add too much salt. Try the following method for making sauerkraut for delicious results!

For the best sauerkraut, use firm heads of fresh cabbage. Shred cabbage and start kraut between 24 and 48 hours after harvest.

Facts you should know:

• Suitable containers: 5 gallon stoneware crock or container or similar size, lined with heavy food-grade plastic bag; or two stoneware crocks, about 3 gallons each; or two containers of similar size, lined with large turkey size plastic bags. Fermenting sauerkraut in jars is no longer recommended.

• Suitable covers and weights: Shredded cabbage must be kept submerged in brine while fermenting. Sufficient weight must be used to keep brine 1 to 2 inches above shredded cabbage. There are two ways to do this:

• Put one food-grade plastic bag inside another. Make brine by adding 1-1/2 tablespoons of salt per quart of boiling water and pour into double bag and tie it shut securely. At least 3 quarts of brine are needed to keep the cabbage under the brine in a 5 gallon crock.

• Use a dinner plate that just fits inside top of crock. Weigh it down with two sealed quart jars filled with sterilized water.

• Cleanliness and good procedures are essential: Crocks or other containers (except plastic bags) must be washed carefully in hot, sudsy water, rinsed well, and scalded with boiling water. If a plate and jars of water are used, they also must be washed, rinsed and scalded each time any scum forms on the liquid surface.

Fermenting kraut should be checked several times each week, and any scum that forms should be skimmed off. The cabbage must be covered with 1 to 2 inches of liquid. If more liquid is needed, use 1-1/2 tablespoons of salt per quart of boiling water.

At temperatures of 70 to 75 degrees F., kraut will be fully fermented in about 3 to 4 weeks; at 60 to 65 degrees F. it may take 5 to 6 weeks. At temperatures lower than 60 degrees F. kraut may not ferment at about 75 degrees F. kraut may become soft.

To make nine quarts of kraut use 25 pounds cabbage. Work with about five pounds of cabbage at a time. Discard outer leaves. Rise heads under cold running water and drain. Cut heads in quarters and remove cores. Shred or slice so that pieces are no thicker than a dime. Put cabbage in a large clean container and add three tablespoon of salt. Mix thoroughly with clean hands. Transfer to scalded crock or other suitable container and pack firmly until salt draws juices from cabbage. Repeat shredding, salting, and packing until all cabbage is in crock. Be sure crock is deep enough that its rim is at least four or five inches above the cabbage. If juice does not cover cabbage, add more boiled and cooled brine (1-1/2 tablespoons salt per quart of water). Weigh down cabbage by one of the recommended methods and store at ideal temperature of 70 to 75 degrees F. Cover crock with plastic film and clean terry cloth towel.

If you weigh the cabbage down with a brine-filled bag, do not disturb the crock until normal fermentation is completed, when bubbling ceases.

If you use a plate and jar as a weight, you will have to check the kraut at least every other day and remove scum if it forms.

Fully fermented kraut can be kept covered in the refrigerator for several months or it can be canned as follows:

Hot Pack - Bring kraut and liquid slowly to a boil in a large kettle, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and pack rather firmly in clean jars, leaving 1/2-inch headspace. Process pints 10 minutes and quarts 15 minutes in boiling water canner.

Raw Pack - Pack firmly in clean jars leaving 1/2-inch headspace. Cover with brine. Adjust lids and process pints 20 minutes and quarts 25 minutes in boiling water canner.

Less Inputs Lower Field Results

MUNDELEIN, Ill. — Fertilization tops the list of critical inputs for alfalfa yields in relation to desirable percentages of crude protein, digestible protein, and TDN (total digestible nutrients) in dairy herd rations.

Therefore, pounds per acre, nutrient content and longevity of stand, which add into the profit equation for dairy producers, are directly related to the amount of soil nutrients available on alfalfa acres.

Sam Kincheloe, Ph.D., director of agronomic services with IMC Fertilizer, Inc., said the need to maintain a quality stand demands nothing short of proper fertilization.

"Reducing fertilizer inputs places alfalfa yields in a vulnerable position, impacting protein content and eliminating the objective to meet nutrient requirements in dairy rations," he said. "This lowers quality to where costly protein supplements must be added into the feeding program, increasing costs and reducing production efficiency."

He said that once crop stress from nutrient deficiencies affects the crop at an early growth stage, little can be done to reverse the potential damage.

"Nutrient stress slows early growth, reduces the number of tillers per crown, and limits root development, which becomes a compounding problem during the entire season," said Kincheloe.

"On the other hand, a well-executed program promotes vigorous growth to shorten the time to first cutting. It hastens regrowth and possibly allows for one additional cutting."

Where periods of water shortages occur, Kincheloe said healthier root systems will also reduce the stress effects on growth and quality of the forage.

Potassium is the most vital nutrient for top alfalfa production in terms of pounds of nutrient needed for each ton of yield. Each ton of harvested alfalfa removes more than 60 pounds of potash. Where yield goals exceed four tons of alfalfa per acre, 250 to 300 pounds of potash per acre are necessary to replace the nutrients utilized or removed by the crop.

Where potassium soil tests show medium to low levels, Kincheloe recommends applying at least 400 pounds of potash to produce six to eight tons of forage per acre.

Stands that are potassium-deficient are more likely to face severe competition from grasses, and stand failure is common, said Kincheloe. Therefore, maintaining an adequate fertility level on alfalfa produces a vigorous, deep root system that resists heaving during freezing and thawing cycles.

As a note, potassium deficiencies can be particularly limiting in areas of heavy rainfall and light textured soils.

Phosphate demands are less in total pounds (13 to 15 P_2O_5) of actual utilization per ton produced, but are just as critical for healthy stands. "This is especially true during early growth when roots are small. High levels of phosphorus should be built up before stands are established," said the agronomist.

Deficiencies can occur during periods of drought when part of the rooting zone may be inactive and during cool periods when uptake of the nutrient slows down.

Tour Centers On Forest Stewardship

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — More than 500,000 of the woodlot owners in Pennsylvania control 75 percent of the total woodlot area, or 12 million acres in the state.

Many have come to understand the importance of good woodlot stewardship, which can take many forms — including managing for the beauty of the property, timber, and wildlife.

The emphasis of the tours was on forest stewardship — how to manage effectively to promote diversity and abundance of tree species and wildlife.

"What the best thing to do for one person's plan for his woodlot wouldn't ncessarily fit somebody else's objective," said Buzzell to the group, which consisted of five woodlot owners from the state, including a farm that managed about 355 acres of wooded area. "But the whole idea of the stewardship program is to manage your woodlot in a wise fashion so that you can use it, you can conserve it, and you can preserve what's in it."

The tour, which could also be taken self-guided with a map, emphasized managing clearcut areas to promote the resurgence of tree and plant species, brush pile management to promote new tree growth and wildlife habitat, rebuilding various tree species by canopy clearance, managing grape vines and other types of food for wildlife, water control using broad dip diversion structures, maintaining clearcut areas, and the aspects of genetic potential combined with growing conditions on the effect of tree standability.

One of the aspects of the stewardship program at the Rockspring forest was to get rid of undesirable plant species, such as the barberry, multifora rose, autumn olive, and fern and to promote growth and regrowth of the pine, black walnut, and other native trees.

Emphasis of the tour was also placed on management of water diversion structures and how to maintain them for wildlife. Maintaining them for insect development is important to sustain young poults and other types of wildlife.

Managing species for maximum diversity will help ensure the continuation of the forest and forest wildlife.

The 1.5-mile tour (on a road paid for by the sale of timber from the forest, according to Buzzell) also showed the effects of tree genetics and location on growth.

Buzzell said that forest landowners have a responsibility to take care of the forest. "The whole idea of this is to treat the environment that's there in a kindly way. You don't want to do anything to harm it. You may change it in some sense, but you don't want to harm it."

A stream with a natural rock bed flows into a hollow wooden log culvert in the forest. Buzzell said this may be the site for the original name of the natural underground "rock springs."

The Forests For Life Exhibit at Ag Progress recently focused on forest landowner stewardship.

IXL
Anti-friction Metal Conditioner

Efficiency IS our Newest Resource

Science brings a new dimension to Anti-Friction

A metal conditioner product ahead of its time, IXL will give your equipment priceless protection. IXL gives protection far superior to just oil or lubricants. IXL is specifically designed to be used in: (NEW) and (USED) gasoline & diesel engines, compressors, automatic & manual transmissions, hydraulics, gear boxes, bearings of all types, turbos, pumps, and much more. IXL is a metal conditioner which treats all ferrous metals 3 to 5 microns deep, thereby making the metal surfaces harder, denser and smoother. These results are minimum metal wear, giving maximum engine and machine life. IXL reduces heat, friction, and wear, up to 75% without changing tolerances, reducing friction will release energy previously expended to overcome ordinary mechanical resistance. This energy is now available as a positive force, working to increase power, performance and fuel savings. IXL, also helps maintain and recondition seals and gaskets, by keeping these items pliable, firm, and flexible. It will help prevent leaks, IXL is not a lubricant fortifier, such as PTFE, Moly, or graphite. IXL is biodegradable, NON-TOXIC and environmentally safe. IXL is one of the highest quality products on the market today.

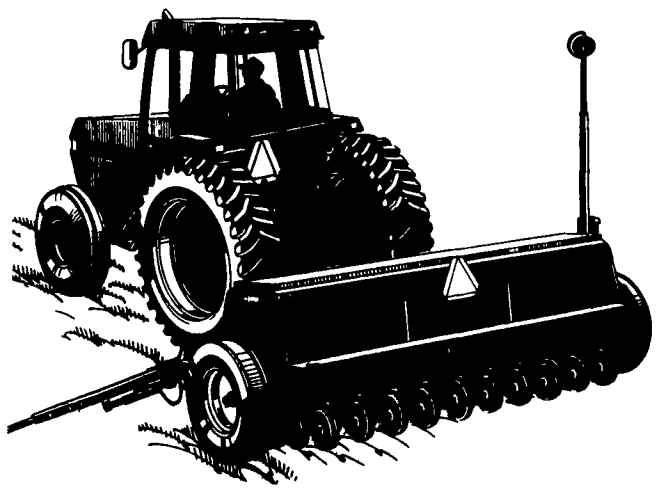
BINKLEY & HURST BROS. INC. HAS A NEW CASE IH

TOP NOTCH QUALITY GRAIN DRILL FOR YOU!

Get Even Stands



There's nothing more important to a crop than early, even emergence. To get it, you need accurate, even seeding.

The 5300 has earned a reputation for its seeding precision, a function of its exclusive feed cup design and dependable disk openers. And, to improve placement of seed, the opener drawbars are heavier than on previous models. Press wheel and opener bearings are heavier for long life operation.

Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers.

You Won't Find A Better No-Till Drill Than GREAT PLAINS

(1) Depth-Gauging Press Wheels keep the opener from penetrating too deep; planting depth can be quickly changed with exclusive dial-a-depth adjustment system.
(2) The spring-loaded coulters offer up to 400 lbs. per row of down-pressure, ensuring that they open a groove in even the toughest residue and soil. Each coulter is integrated with its opener and press wheel arm so that coulters and openers are close enough for good tracking but separated to allow good trash flow.
(3) A spring steel mounting bar allows the entire planting system to flex with the terrain, for even more flexibility for the coulter and opener assembly.
(4) The double-disk openers and coulters flex independently to pass over stones easily. A sturdy down-pressure spring with 56 lbs. of pressure per inch holds the opener firmly in the groove.

THE NO-TILL DRILL THAT WORKS

Here's why:
The end wheel-opener alignment means that the openers neither gouge the soil nor leave the ground when traversing rolling ground; they simply follow the terrain right with the end wheels. The end wheels also act as stabilizers to hold the openers steady when seeding on slopes. By keeping the ground-working components well protected within the profile of the end wheels, the operating costs are low on our Solid Stand No-Till Drill.

Their versatility, their residue clearance, and their compact design make these drills a natural choice. Their narrow widths make them perfect for narrow roads and gates.

Even with all these outstanding no-till capabilities, these drills are well-suited to conventional seeding as well. And of course they have the same great opener and press wheel system offered by all Great Plains Solid Stand drills.

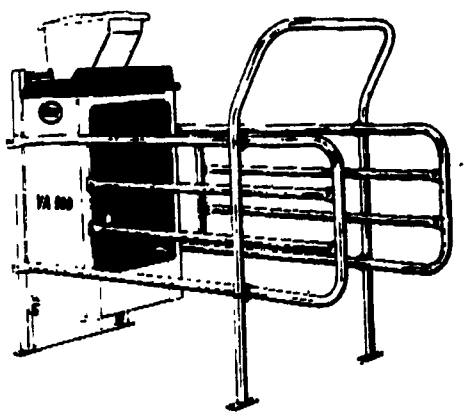
With this concentrate feeding system LESS MEANS MORE

Dairymen report a 7-8% increase in milk yield with 5% less concentrate input with the new VA 500.

Each cow's ration is fed automatically according to her individual lactation curve. Feeding for production means high producing cows get more. Every cow pays her way. The whole herd can be housed together and you don't need complicated computer support systems for operation.



Make your concentrate work harder.

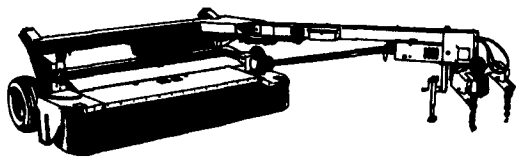
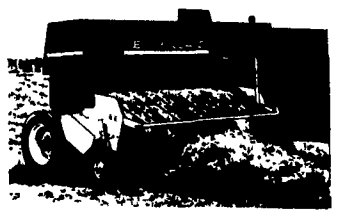
Dependable Discbine® performance Now wider!



You'll love the wide-cutting performance of the new Model 415 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner. Seven discs make an 11½-foot cut to cover acres fast, and with the New Holland torsion bar roll pressure system, you'll condition thoroughly without plugging. Stop in soon and let us show you the big performance of the new "415."

Now get better bales from a better baler



Solid, stackable bales. And unsurpassed baler capacity.

You'll get it all from New Holland square balers. The Models 570 and 575 feature a revolutionary rotary feeder that is tender on alfalfa . . . while handling lots of crop.

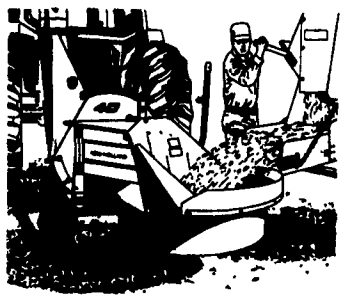
For the best combination of capacity, reliability and quality in the industry, visit us today . . . your Ford New Holland dealer.

Seeing is believing



Every minute you can save at the blower means more loads per day and more overall productivity. Let us demonstrate the New Holland Model 40 forage blower and we believe you'll agree you can increase your silage productivity.

The Model 40, with 20 percent greater tip speed than previous models, center fills silos over 80 feet high. The Whirl-A-Feed® table spins the crop into the blower housing at high speed, making more efficient use of your tractor's horsepower.

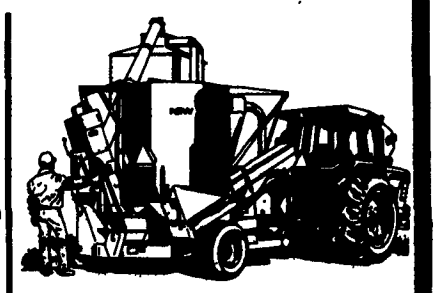
See us soon for a demonstration of the Model 40.

Total performance for big crop harvesting

You get total performance when you harvest your crops with a Model 900 forage harvester. Total performance begins at the cutterhead. The 12 knives of the 21-inch cutterhead give you uniformly cut, high-quality forage. Other features on the "900" include:

- Optional Metalert® II electronic metal detector—protects cutterhead and your valuable animals.
- Electromagnetic clutches—give instant response in controlling feedroll and attachment drives.
- Easy-adjust shearbar—makes adjustment fast and precise.

Stop in soon and see the Model 900.

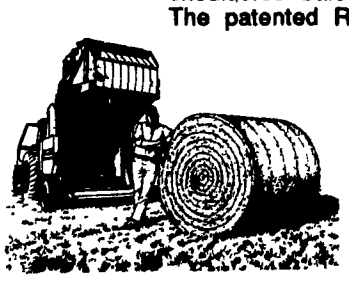


First in durability

Surveys show owners rate New Holland grinder-mixers as the most durable. That's because Ford New Holland builds them right and backs them with quality parts and service. The Model 358 has a 125-bushel tank that's specially designed to eliminate bridging. An optional electronic scale assures accurate control of rations. Stop in and see the durable Model 358 grinder-mixer.

NEW! Exclusive design produces best-ever bales

The unique New Holland Models 650 and 660 Roll-Belt™ round balers make the best quality bales ever. Tight bales — dense bales. Good-looking, square-shouldered bales that hold up to the weather. The patented Roll-Belt™ design means fast, sure core formation, even in the toughest crops. The adjustable hydraulic belt-tensioning system puts maximum bale density control at your fingertips. And, you can choose from three optional automatic tying mechanisms for the smoothest package ever.

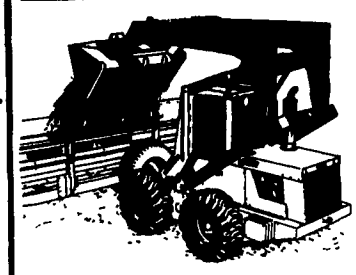


Harvest your crop with the best in self-propelled harvesting

If you custom harvest as well as chop your own forage, self-propelled harvester like the Model 1915 can help you harvest more crop at peak quality. The fuel-efficient 270-horsepower diesel engine and the 24-inch, 12-knife cutterhead give you high-capacity day-in and day-out harvesting. And the exclusive automatic knife sharpener and automatic shearbar adjuster, called Accucut™, combine to give you precision-sharpened knives and a reset shearbar, all from the comfort of the cab.

Stop in today and let us show you the other features of the "1915". Or better yet, let's set up a time to demonstrate this harvester in your own field.

Load... unload faster and easier



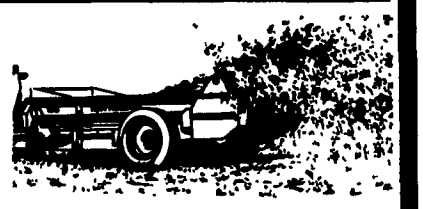
When you're working the big loads you need the Super Boom advantage — extra reach.

With more forward dump reach you can center load your largest spreader from one side so you get an even load. The result: faster loading, fuller loads and easier unloading.

With level bucket lift you load more and lift higher... with less spillback. And, with a longer wheelbase there's more stability and safety. So, why get stuck with anything else?

Find out just how good a skid-steer loader can be.

We have a spreader for any farm



Ford New Holland offers six quality spreaders to match any farming operation. All New Holland spreaders clean out fast to make quick work of dirty jobs.

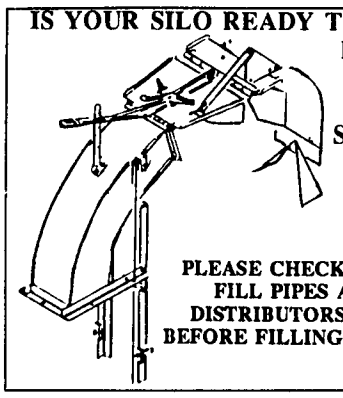
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH CORN SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

WILL SERVICE 3 TO 4 DAYS OR LESS ON MOST JOBS

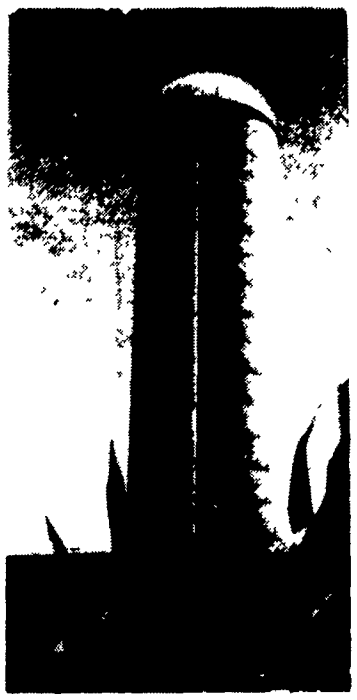
WE HAVE A SILO TO MEET ANY AND ALL OF YOUR STORAGE NEEDS!!!



THIS IS THE KIND OF SILO YOU NEED TO STORE YOUR VALUABLE FEEDS!

When planning your forage programs, remember that your main objective is to "store the plant and remove it from storage in as good condition as possible." THE UPRIGHT SILO HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALLED IN ITS ABILITY TO DO THIS.

As herds become larger and labor is becoming more costly and scarce, there is more need to cut time requirements for all parts of the operation. The silo, or a combination of silos can be a key in reducing time spent harvesting, storing, and feeding your herd. "A properly managed upright silo is one of the best investments that a dairy farmer can make. "YOUR BEST CHOICE IS A POURED CONCRETE SILO.

CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SOLLENBERGER SILOS.

Purina Calf Startena:
For over 50 years the leader —but never more so than today.

When Purina introduced Calf Startena back in the 1930's, it was widely recognized as the most advanced calf starter ever made up to that time. Over the years, Startena has changed dramatically as researchers have discovered new information about the calf's digestive system, the onset of rumen changes, and nutritional requirements for proper rumen wall development.

Why no hay.

Since 1949, Purina researchers have recommended against feeding hay (or any other forage) to calves under two months of age. For years, this "no hay" premise was in dispute, but today most nutritionists agree. However, many dairy operations still include hay in their feeding programs, even though tests show it is an unwise practice.

Performance of Dairy Calves On Hay vs. No Hay Regimens

	Hay (Ad Lib)	No Hay
Total Weight Gain (lb)	58.20	69.50
Daily Intake Startena (lb)	1.71	2.10
Daily Intake Alfalfa Hay (lb)	.41	—

Duration of trials: 4 days to 2 months of age.

An extra 11.3 pounds of gain, as averaged by calves that did not receive hay, is especially valuable in the early weeks.
